NO OIL BONDS IN HARDING ESTATE, INVESTIGATION OF RECORDS PROVES

BUS PROPOSAL SUBMITTED BY YELLOW CAB CO.

Six Routes Radiating from Courthouse Provided in Tentative Schedule
15-MINUTE SERVICE
Local Corporation Planned in Event Company Is Given Franchise

Cash fares of 10 cents or six tickets for 50 cents for adults, and eight cents or seven tickets for 50 cents for children, are asked in a proposal for establishing a city bus line submitted yesterday with City Solicitor George T. Geran by Frank M. Baldwin, manager of the Yellow Cab Co.

Six bus routes, all radiating from the Courthouse, are proposed by the company. In reality there are but three routes across the city, but the company has divided the runs using the Courthouse as a center.

The proposal is based on a survey made by engineers employed by the Yellow Truck & Coach Manufacturing Co. of Chicago.

The east and west routes correspond with the present street car lines and extend from Garfield park to Oakland Heights. A 15 minute service would be maintained with an 11 minute service during rush hours. Extra buses would be operated over this line during the rush hour in the mornings and late afternoons.

15-Minute Service
All routes with the exception of the Center-st line, would be operated on an alternating 15-minute service, giving a half-hour service on each of the lines. Buses on the northern route.

JUNIOR CHAMBER TO HOLD DINNER

Announce Plans for Banquet and Civic Meeting on March 29

Plans for a banquet and civic meeting to be held at Hotel Harding, March 29, under auspices of the Marion Junior Chamber of Commerce, a new organization which promises to become an important factor in local community affairs, were announced today by the officers.

Although the primary purpose is to promote the campaign launched to increase the Junior Chamber membership enrollment, the program will include discussion of important civic projects and representatives of various other local organizations have been invited to attend.

The principal speaker will be J. T. Teimeyer, secretary of the Cincinnati Junior Chamber and chairman of the Ohio State Junior Chambers of Commerce, co-ordinating committee.

Talks will also be given by Rhu Cheney, president of the local Junior Chamber, Charles Whysall, chairman of the organization's airport committee, and a representative of the Marion Chamber of Commerce.

Tickets for the banquet may be obtained, it was announced, at the office of C. H. Conley on S. Main-st, or at headquarters of the Marion Chamber of Commerce, where the Junior Chamber holds its meetings.

Arrangements are in charge of the officers, who include Rhu C. Cheney, president; Paul E. Piersol, vice president; and Kenneth M. Clutter, secretary-treasurer.

The Junior Chamber has set its initial membership goal at 150.

John Coolidge Evades Reporters Concerning His Reported Engagement

NEW YORK, March 22.—John Coolidge, who came down from Amherst for the college glee club concert, today exhibited some family characteristics. Before leaving for Washington he was interviewed by reporters.

"Was Florence Trumbull at the concert?" he was asked.

"It was the best concert we've had in years," John replied, and refused to be drawn into any comment on the recurrent reports of his engagement to the daughter of the governor of Connecticut.

He will spend the Easter holidays at the White House with his family.

BANDIT PAIR TAKES $40 FROM OIL STATION

Well-Dressed Holdup Men Leave Automobile Here After Caledonia Job

Two well-dressed bandits, traveling in a Chrysler coupe, held up Henry Nufer at his filling station in Caledonia last night and escaped with $40 taken from the cash drawer.

One of the men, about 30 years old, covered Nufer with a revolver while his companion, described as being about 25 years old, took the contents of the till.

After forcing Nufer to turn his face to the wall and warning him to remain in that position until they had made their getaway the bandits drove away in their car, headed toward Marion.

The holdup pair drove up to Nufer's filling station, located at Water-st and the Harding Highway, shortly before 8 o'clock and had Nufer fill their gasoline tank.

Authorities Notified
As Nufer finished supplying the gas, the older of the bandits fished his revolver and grimly announced:

"Now I guess we'll go into your office."

There he held the gun on the filling station proprietor while his accomplice looted the cash drawer.

As soon as the bandit car had driven away, Nufer notified J. C. Sharrock, Caledonia marshal, who telephoned to Sheriff Deal at his office here.

"Early this morning the sheriff was notified that a Chrysler coupe answering to the description of the machine used by the bandits had been found abandoned on Olney-av near the Wesley M. E. Church. It carried license number 25,997 and is believed to have been stolen in Mt. Gilead. The sheriff immediately notified Mt. Gilead authorities.

The bandits, the sheriff believes, probably abandoned their car here and stole another machine in order to evade identification and capture.

A Buick Master six coach belonging to R. E. Horton, 193 1-2 E. Center-st, was stolen from in front of the Horton Apartment last night and it is believed that it may have been taken by the bandits.

LEWIS AND BELDEN FIGHT OVER HEARING

Clash Comes When Mine Union Head Urges Postponement of Rejection

Washington, March 22.—A sharp fight between John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and W. P. Belden, counsel for the Eastern Ohio Operators, broke out before the Senate Coal Committee today.

It started when Lewis appealed to the committee to request the operators to postpone a hearing on an order which would compel 400 striking families to vacate company houses in Ohio. The hearing is scheduled Saturday before Federal Judge Hugh at Columbus.

By winning, Chaney was awarded a professional basketball given by The Star. As can be seen from the above picture, he starts his shots from an unusual position.

Brother of Marion Man Believed Dead Returns To Find Wife Has Remarried

Shell-Shocked Veteran Who Disappeared in 1920 After Brief "Cure" in Army Hospital Regains Memory Following Years of Aimless Wandering

The story of a World War veteran, who has virtually "returned from the dead" to find his wife married to another man was disclosed today in letters received from him by a brother living in Marion and a sister in Willoughby, O., neither of whom had heard from him since his disappearance eight years ago.

The ex-soldier who figures as the Enchanted Arden in this modern drama of real life is Edward Furlong, 42, now a patient at Great Lakes Hospital, Great Lakes, Ill., where his memory was restored recently after many months of what was practically a living death.

Tells of Letter
His brother is Lawrence Furlong, Erie engineer residing at 421 Oak-st, who informed a newspaper reporter last night that he heard from the missing man 10 days ago for the first time since the close of the war.

"I'm not dead yet, but sometimes I've wished I was," the letter read. Lawrence Furlong is now in Akron, which is the terminal of his run as an Erie engineer. He is at his home here only for the week-end.

The sister who received the other letter from the war veteran in Mrs. Nellie Bilson of Willoughby, the home town of the Furlong family.

Turner Files Contempt Proceedings in Supreme Court Against Clevelanders
Columbus, March 22.—Six Cleveland men were accused of contempt of the Ohio Supreme Court in litigation instituted by Attorney General Edward C. Turner here this afternoon. Turner filed with Clerk Seth Miller, of the Supreme Court, "informations" charging Roy H. Gulkley, Robert E. Albion, Charles E. Bollen, George Schneider, Minor C. Reid, colored, and Welcome T. Blue, also colored, all of Cleveland, with fraudulently conspiring with Ralph W. Miller, a son of Seth Miller, to obtain for themselves passing grades at the state bar examination conducted last June under the direction of the State Supreme Court.

DROP PLAN TO QUIZ FALL AT HIS BEDSIDE

Senate Committee Unimpressed by Former Secretary's Willingness To Talk DESPERATELY ILL

Sends Telegram to Norris Saying He Will Tell About Leases

Washington, March 22.—Albert B. Fall's professed willingness to tell his story about the oil scandals, on the basis of his telegram from 13 Pass, failed to impress members of the Senate investigating committee today, and the prospect of sending a subcommittee to his bedside was abandoned.

"Mr. Fall says in his telegram that he knows nothing about the Continental Trading Co. nor the Liberty Liquid proliferation that occurred therefrom," said Senator Walsh, Democrat of Montana, the committee prosecutor. "The purpose of the present inquiry is to find out what became of those bonds. It appears, therefore, that he has nothing to tell the committee. As for the oil leases themselves, concerning which he appears willing to testify, I do not believe he could shed any new light on them. That phase is pretty well known."

Fall, central figure in the naval oil scandal, "is ready to tell all" about his connection with the oil leases, but he would rather do it in court than before a body of senatorial quizers.

Willing to Testify
This was the gist of a telegram Fall sent to Senator Nye late last night, in response to a telegraphic inquiry as to whether the ex-minister would testify if a subcommittee of senators were sent to his bedside at El Paso.

He is, however, apparently willing to testify before a Senate committee if the District Supreme Court grants it. Turn to Page 5

TO MAKE ELABORATE PLANS FOR STUDENTS

International Oratorical Contestants To Be Entertained in Splendor

When the high school students representing the district of Marion, Steubenville, East Liverpool and Salem go to Canton to participate in the state finals of the International Oratorical Contest on April 27, they are going to be entertained in splendor.

Arrangements have been completed for holding the state contest in the First Christian Church at Canton, one of the historic houses of worship in that city. It has a huge auditorium and the acoustics are said to be splendid. The seating capacity is about 1,500.

The Rev. P. H. Wolshimer, pastor of the First Christian Church, and others connected with it, granted permission to hold the contest there. They said they would be glad to have the students and their friends come to the church.

Just now arrangements are being completed for assembling five judges. It is hoped to have those judges representative of the state Supreme Court, some of the colleges of the state and other activities allied with promotion of a contest as important as the International Oratorical Contest.

The entertainment program for the visiting students and their companions is being worked out at Canton. This no doubt will include a native theater party, and perhaps a dinner for the visitors.

REPORT WILL BE GIVEN TO COMMITTEE

Special Prober of Senate Group Returns to Washington After Inquiry into Estates of President and Mrs. Warren G. Harding

ONLY FIRST ISSUE BONDS FOR $500

Continental Oil Co. Paper All in First Loan and in $1,000 Denomination, Says Investigator; Friends Here Not Surprised

IN an exclusive interview granted here today to The Marion Star, a Brush-Moore newspaper formerly owned by the late President Harding, Charles D. Schaffner, executor of the estate of the late president, declared that an examination of his records by a special investigator sent here by the Senate Public Lands Committee, established that President Harding possessed none of the $3,080,000 worth of Continental Trading Co. Liberty bonds involved in the Teapot Dome investigation.

This information was scheduled to be presented today to Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Montana, prosecutor of the committee, by William F. Allen, St. Louis, the committee's special investigator, who went over the records of the Harding estate here yesterday with Mr. Schaffner.

All of the bonds of the Continental Trading Co. were of the First Liberty Loan issue and in denominations of $1,000, the government investigator disclosed, while only two First Liberty loan bonds, both of $500 denomination, were found in the Harding estate.

Do Not Correspond
These two bonds belonged to President Harding. Their serial numbers, 0.520 and 0.521, do not correspond with the serial numbers of the Continental Trading Co. bonds, the investigation of the federal man further revealed.

Records kept by the executor show that President Harding possessed $182,750 worth of Liberty bonds and that Mrs. Harding owned $85,500 worth.

Of this total, $255,000 in Liberty bonds, owned by President and Mrs. Harding, only two were possessed by the president, were of the first issue, the investigation disclosed. The remainder were in the second, third and fourth issues. Schaffner's records of the estate disclose.

Drawn Out Before Tour
Mr. Schaffner, who was named President Harding's executor in his last will drawn the day before the president started on his ill-fated Alaskan tour, completed his work as administrator and was discharged in 1925. Some of the papers of the estate have been turned over to Dr. George T. Harding, Jr., Worthington, a brother of the late president.

The investigation into the Teapot Dome Naval Oil Reserves bonds turned to Marion Monday as the result of an announcement by Senator Gerald P. Nye, that a probe would be made of the Harding estate to determine whether $213,000 in bonds reported to have figured among his securities following the sale of The Star to the Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., bear serial numbers of Henry F. Sinclair's Continental Trading Co. bonds.

Senator Nye explained this decision to conduct an inquisitorial committee had been besieged with demands that a new investigation be launched into the circumstances surrounding the sale of The Marion Star to the Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., before his death in 1923.

"Until that transaction has been thoroughly investigated and settled," Senator Nye asserted in addressing the committee, "there will be many people who will never believe that President Harding did not obtain some of the oil bonds."

Close friends of the late president, who welcomed the investigation into the estates, to settle for all time any question that may have been raised in connection with the president's sale of his paper, were not surprised by the findings of the investigator. It was what they had expected.

OUTLOOK BRIGHTER

Prospects for Enactment of Tax Cut Bill Better
Washington, March 22.—The prospects for enactment of a tax reduction bill at the present session of Congress were brighter today following an announcement that the Senate Finance Committee will begin tax relief hearings on April 8.

Both Republicans and Democratic leaders declared the hearings would be short in the hope of getting a tax bill before the Senate by the middle of April. This would give the Senate six weeks to enact the bill and an additional week for the House and Senate to concur on conditioning amendments before the June recess. The house already has passed a relief bill.

Columbiana, Ala., March 22.—An old words "not guilty" echoed through the court room today, from the jury trying Police Chief H. F. Blake for the murder of Miss Louise Montezano, Miss Cecil Tubbs, aunt of the dead girl, stabbed the policeman in the neck with a six-inch dirk, and her mother fired a bullet from a pistol that buried itself in the wall above the jury box.

Attorney General Charles McCal who directed the prosecution of Blake, fainted, and more than 20 spectators who gathered to hear the verdict, were thrown into an uproar as four officers seized the two women and disarmed them.

Chief Blake fell to the floor, blood pouring from the wound in his neck.

MOVE TO OUST MELLON DUE TO BREAK TODAY

Vote May Be Blocked by Filibuster; Reed Fighting Resolution

Washington, March 22.—A spectacular effort to oust Andrew W. Mellon, one of America's richest men, from his post as secretary of the Treasury, was scheduled to break in the Senate today.

Under Senate rules, the Cousseau resolution was subject to debate shortly after noon, but a vote on it could be blocked if its discussion lasted until 2 o'clock. A simple filibuster for that.

MELLON DOES NOT INTEND TO RESIGN

Washington, March 22.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon "has no intention of resigning."

This was stated in his behalf at the Treasury today, with reference to the Senate resolution demanding his resignation, fostered by Senator Cousseau, Republican of Michigan, scheduled to be debated in the Senate today.

length of time would temporarily prevent final action on it.

There were indications that some Republican insurgents and most of the Democrats would support the resolution, sponsored by Senator James Cousseau, Republican of Michigan, a multi-millionaire himself, an old-time foe of Mellon. Their controversy dates back to 1922 when Cousseau conducted an investigation of tax matters, only to find the Treasury suing him later for millions of dollars in back taxes over his former ownership of stock in the Ford Motor Co.

Administration senators, led by Senator David A. Reed, Republican of Pennsylvania, were ready to fight the resolution. With the aid of Democratic conservatives, they appeared certain of commanding a sufficient majority to defeat the resolution unless new charges are introduced in the fight.

STUDENTS EXCEL IN ARITHMETIC IN CITY

Test Shows Second, Third and Fourth Grade Pupils Know Their Mathematics

Pupils of the second, third and fourth grades of Marion Public Schools are "up" on at least one of the three tests, and that Arithmetic, according to the results of Arithmetic tests taken recently by pupils of those three grades.

The report was made public today by School Superintendent Jesse H. Mason, who was responsible for the tests. It is the old idea that children do their best work in the subject they like the best is true. Arithmetic has proved one of the most popular subjects taught in the lower grades.

Of the 680 second grade pupils taking a test consisting of 40 addition problems to be worked in three minutes time, 826 youngsters had perfect papers. Out of 495 third grade pupils taking a two-minute test consisting of 45 multiplication problems, 215 had perfect papers. One hundred and fifty-one of the 583 fourth grade pupils taking a 15-minute long division test of 12 problems, also had grades of 100.

Fourth Leaders
Grades at Silver, Oakland and two at Forest Lawn Schools led the fourth grade of the city with averages of 11 problems out of 12. The teachers were Miss Jeannette Turner, Silver, from whose class of 27, 14 had perfect papers; Miss Sara Howser, Oakland, from whose class of 89, 17 had perfect papers; Miss Ruth Markert, Forest Lawn, from whose class of 89, 16 had perfect papers; and Miss Anna Elnde, Forest Lawn, from whose class of 20, seven had perfect papers.

In the third grade test, grades at Lincoln, Greenwood and Silver Buildings had averages of 90 per cent or more. The teachers were Elsie Hankel, Lincoln, from whose class of 30, 24 had perfect papers; Lorena Cobb, Greenwood, from whose class of 34, 18 had perfect papers; Mildred Biddle, Silver, from whose class of 88, 23 had perfect papers; and Wilma Chick, Lincoln, from whose class of 31, 16 had perfect papers.

For the second grade test, the grades taught by Ruth Edwards, Greenwood, Elizabeth Hinklin, Lincoln, Florence Busch, N. Main, Grace Wiegert, Forest Lawn and Elizabeth Dowell, David, led with averages of 87 per cent or more.

GREEN CAMP LODGE ATTENDS AGOSTA MEETING

Green Camp, March 22.—Scioto Valley Rebekah Lodge members were guests Tuesday night of Independent Lodge of Agosta. A class of four candidates was initiated by the Scioto Lodge degree team of Marion, under the direction of the captain Miss Edna Rodgers. Those present from Green Camp were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bricker, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Temple, Mrs. Bertha Osborn, Mrs. Nettie Deaver, Mrs. Zetta Ritzler, Mrs. Ellen Johnston, Mrs. Mattie George, Mrs. Mary Berry, Mrs. Clara Davis and Mrs. Margaret Ward. ARMY HAS LITTLE USE FOR SPY NOW

More Information Obtained Over Tea Table Than Any Other Way

Washington, March 22.—The military spy who stole secret photographs of enemy fortifications and bought information in a basement cafe of dubious reputation has disappeared from the modern peace-time activities of the military intelligence service of the Army.

At least, War Department representatives in laying the situation before the House Appropriations Committee contended that more information was obtained over the tea-table than by almost any other method.

The discussion came about with a request to Congress for entertainment funds for American military attaches in foreign capitals.

"The system of the collection of military information is different from what it was a few years back, in that practically all information is obtained on an exchange basis," explained Colonel Ford.

"Immediately upon his arrival at a foreign station, an American officer is entertained by foreign officers, not because of his individuality, but because he is a representative of our government. These obligations are thrown upon him. It is necessary to return them in some form."

If an officer doesn't get the military information his government wants in social contacts, he goes and asks for it, or vice versa, it was said.

"For example, if the chief of our service should ask to be informed concerning an air field in Japan, our military attaché would be directed to go to the War Office in Tokio and make application to visit that field, to be permitted to examine their installations, and perhaps to be informed concerning some of their developments. In the course of time, the War Department would say, 'Yes, you may go on a certain date.'"

DOCTORS SHOW HOW TO END HEAD COLDS

Many Men Try New Hospital Method in Own Home Got Relief in Few Hours

A great many people—like Edw. W. Tyler, have learned that it is no longer necessary to let a head or chest cold make a person feel miserable or cause fear of pneumonia. For doctors are now recommending a simple home treatment that brings sure relief—relief in a few hours.

A severe cold had kept Mr. Tyler from business several days. When nothing seemed to help him he called his physician, who prescribed double strength doses of Cherry Pectoral—a highly concentrated mixture of wild cherry, terpin hydrate and other ingredients which have relieved even the most extreme hospital cases.

With the first swallow he felt the soothing, comforting, healing warmth from his nose passages deep down into his chest. In a few hours he felt lots better and slept well that night. In another day or so, the doctor reports, the cold was completely gone.

Notes: See other cases—all certified to this paper by the attending physician.

Doctors find that this hospital medicine does far more than stop coughing instantly. It penetrates and beats inflamed linings of the breathing passages. Absorbed by the system it quickly reduces phlegm, helps allay that "feverish" grippy feeling and drives out the cold from the nose passages, throat and chest.

Just a few pleasant spoonfuls of Cherry Pectoral now and you'll feel like a different person tomorrow. At all drug stores, 60¢; twice as much in $1.00 hospital size.

GOITRE NOT A DISEASE

Milwaukee Doctor Makes Remarkable Discovery

Milwaukee, Wis.—It has been brought to light by scientific research that goitre is not a disease and is not to be treated as such. Dr. A. A. Rock, Dept. 609, Box 737, Milwaukee, Wis., a prominent goitre specialist for over 24 years, has perfected a different method of treatment for his patients that has proved remarkably successful. This same method is now being used for a home treatment of goitre cases all over the country with astonishing results. The doctor states that goitre is a condition which grows worse with neglect and recommends immediate attention no matter how small the growth may appear. He strongly opposes needless operations. Dr. Rock is the author of a book that tells in a simple way about treating goitre at home. He has published this book at his own expense and will send a copy free to anyone interested. has just published in the "Eighth Commandment" a novel, "The Eighteenth Commandment," which is now being word revised.

Osborne is recognized as one of the best writers in the world. His story, "A Few Kiss of the Girl," which won the first prize in Boston, some years ago, was the author's first novel. At that time, he was living in N. States, and was married to a woman with a name which was the same as the name of the late Mrs.
J. J. Osborne. He was a man of letters, and was known as a novelist.

His book has been termed by its author as "The Eighteenth Commandment," and on trial in the courts, and on trial

CLASS MEETS

Progressive Class of Prospect Plans April Social

Prospect, March 22—The Progressive Class of the Baptist Church held its regular social Monday night in the church basement, with about 50 present. The president, Amos Cox, presided during the business session. Mrs. Emory Roberts offered prayer. Mrs. Dayton Hedges gave the secretary's report. Rev. Porter reported on the Christmas box which was sent to Kentucky.

George Thomas was appointed as toastmaster and Mrs. Hazel Mounts as the April social. Mrs. Charles Beery, chairman of the menu committee for Mrs. Eugene Kimmel, Mrs. Lawrence Canterbury and Mrs. Dayton Hedges were appointed as a visiting committee. After prayer by Rev. Porter, a social hour of contests and games were enjoyed. The committee in charge of games and refreshments was Mr. and Mrs. Emory Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kimmel, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mounts, Rev. and Mrs. S. F. Porter and Mrs. Charles Beery. Six new members were reported at this meeting.

TO JUDGE DEBATE

Ohio Wesleyan Students To Preside Here Friday

Three members of the debate team of Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Donald Sherbondy, Harold Waggoner and Louis Switzer, will act as judges for Harding High School's debate with Calion High School at Central Junior High School Auditorium Friday night.

At a meeting of members of the Kinesian Club, senior girls' gymnasium group, late yesterday afternoon at the school, arrangements were made for entertaining the debaters, judges and members of the faculty at the Harding High School gym following the debate.

ENJOYS SURPRISE

Prospect, March 22—Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Laury enjoyed a very pleasant birthday surprise Sunday. A basket dinner was a pleasant feature of the day. The afternoon was spent in a social way. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Morrow and children, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Skinner, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bowen and children, John and Gordon Postle, of Marion; Miss Viola Croftinger, of New California; Mr. and Mrs. John Favorite and Miss Opal Barcus.

DIES IN NEW YORK CITY

Funeral services for Dr. James Edmondson, brother of A. C. Edmondson, Mr. Vernon, who died Tuesday in New York City, were held today in that place. Interment was made in a cemetery in New York City. Mr. Edmondson was about 69 years of age and is survived by his widow and a step-daughter. Mr. Edmondson, of this city, was unable to attend the funeral.

New spring wall papers are now in and we are ready to show you our patterns. C. L. Murphy, 129 S. Main St.—Adv.

The most recent government estimate credits the United States with three-fifths of the world's radio broadcasting stations and five times more receiving sets than used in any other country.

Plans have been submitted to the French government for a vehicular tunnel with a roadway 20 feet wide under the River Seine to link Havre and Honfleur.

PLAN "KID PARTY"

Event Will Be Staged April 20 in Harding High Gym

Plans were made for a "kid party" in the gymnasium, Harding High School, Friday night, April 20, at a meeting of members of the senior class Tuesday at the school. Jane Shelton, class president, at that time appointed the following committee to select entertainment invitations for the class, Dorothy Zieg, Leora Thompson, George Stafford and Harold Carroll. Miss Shelton will herself act as head of the committee, which held its first official meeting last night.

Goiter Mars Beauty

Goiter causes muscles to sag early in life. Goiter causes the neck to enlarge and the ankles to swell. Goiter causes worry and worry makes lines in the face. Goiter causes the hair to fall, the teeth to crumble and saps the glow and bloom of youth. Goiter changes pleasing dispositions to irritable, quarrelsome, repelling types. Goiter causes premature old age.

Why put off treatment until Goiter wrecks you physically and mentally? The von Sittler Mineral Pack, latest scientific treatment for Inward or Outward Goiter, is efficient, inexpensive and convenient—no trouble—no bother—always ready for use.

The von Sittler Mineral Pack is the easy way, and costs only a few cents each day. One size—one price—$1.50.

Skeptics Finally Convinced Coolidge Won't Be Drafted

INDIAN WOMAN CLAIMS SHE OWNS WHOLE TOWN

Clarksville, Tenn.—Claiming practically all the realty in Clarksville under the will of her great uncle, Phil Billington, a Black Creek Indian, Charity Martin, an elderly negro woman, is going to the courts here in an effort to force property owners in this city to vacate or start paying her rent. Property owners say they are undisturbed.

For several years this elderly woman has flooded county officers with claims that she owned the town. At one time she offered to compromise by selling half the property. She claims that the "pale face" settled on the spot without permission of the Indian owners. Now that the deed to the property has been left to her, the woman plans a fight in the civil courts.

TRAIN IRISH ARMY IN NEW MILITARY COLLEGE

Dublin—As a result of military knowledge gained during their recent visit to the United States, Major General McNeill, Lieut. Collins Powell, nephew of the late Gen. TELLS WYOMING REQUEST MUST BE DECLINED

Committee Had Asked President To Accept Four More Years

Washington, March 22.—The "Draft Coolidge" movement, which has been growing weaker and weaker lately, had very little left to nourish it today.

For the third time in eight months President Coolidge has taken himself out of consideration for the Republican nomination, a move even the hardest skeptics were about convinced today that he meant it.

Even C. Hanson Sleep, his former secretary, who has insisted all along that Mr. Coolidge would be drafted and that he would accept a renomination if it were forced upon him, conceded today that the Republican choice will have to fall elsewhere.

He announced himself for Herbert Hoover, which means that Virginia's 17 delegates will support the cabinet candidate at Kansas City.

Mr. Coolidge's third refusal of the crown was couched in somewhat different fashion than his previous renunciations. In the Black Hills he said last August that he didn't "choose to run." To the Republican National Committee here last December he said "Look elsewhere." To the Wyoming Republican Committee which petitioned him to "accept four more years," he said, through his secretary, "I must decline to grant the request of the committee."

Leaders in Quandary
Leaders in important states who have kept their organizations in hand by the "Draft Coolidge" plea were put in a quandary today by the president's latest move. These leaders, among them Charles D. Hilles, of New York, and Mayor "Bill" Thompson, of Chicago, have successfully resisted threatened invasions from other candidacies by whooping it up for the draft movement and arguing for uninstructed delegates.

It now remains to be seen whether in view of Mr. Coolidge's latest statement, they can keep control of their organizations to the point of sending uninstructed delegates to Kansas City. In New York, for instance, there is a well-defined Hoover movement which several times has threatened to bolt over and confound Hilles' leadership.

Three Unpledged
New York, Illinois and Pennsylvania present the three largest delegations in the convention. All are uninstructed and unpledged. In each of these states the "Draft Coolidge" movement has been kept alive and breathing by the leaders who want to send uninstructed delegates to Kansas City. These three states represent a bloc of 220 delegates—a powerful weapon in the hands of capable leadership so long as they are unpledged.

The Hoover managers predict that they will have well over 400 votes after the first ballot at Kansas City. Should any two of these states swing over into the Hoover column it would lead the victory, in the opinion of observers here.

HIGH SCHOOL PAPER STAFF VISITS PLANT

Kirkpatrick, March 22.—Members of the staff of the "Square Dealer," a paper published by the English class of the High School, made an inspection tour of the printing establishment of J. W. Hopely, of Bucyrus, on Tuesday afternoon. After being shown through the various departments, they visited the Bucyrus High School.

Those who made the trip were Pauline Kennedy, Jennie Lemke, Vanessa Kennedy, Helen Hart, Paul Cluff, Edith Speer, Margaret Kennedy and Miss Cora Marvin, faculty advisor.

MUNICIPALIZED ROMANCE IS POPULAR IN VILLAGE

Loughborough, Eng.—For perhaps the first time in English history, "municipalized romance" was organized here recently when, at the invitation of the mayor, 300 pretty Loughborough spinners attended a Leap Year dance, each bringing a partner.

It was the mayor's view that many marriages would result from the dance, which was staged in an atmosphere redolent of cupid.

Special sitting-out places were arranged by the mayor so that no shy young man could plead there was too much publicity. Alcoves embowered in red and white roses were dotted about the room. Each had a capacious armchair suitable for two.

By the addition of attachments a new vacuum cleaner can be used to sand, wax and polish hardwood floors.

MASK VEIL FOR SPRING MILLINERY

Two of the French millinery models which feature the mask veil as part of their trimmings. Left is a Cora Marson model in black felt and velvet, and, on the right, a Mme. de Blanchelet creation with a snappy white felt ornament. Both have the veil which nearly covers the face.

TOWN'S NAME ON BARN EFFORT TO AID FLIERS

Lorain, O.—This city was the first in the country that was marked so it may be identified by airplane pilots it was revealed by H. G. Curtis, head of the local Chamber of Commerce.

Six years ago, a man whose name had never been recorded, painted the word "Lorain" on the roof of his barn, and mail pilots who noticed it suggested this be done in other cities where they landed.

Millionaire 72-Year-Old Woman Elopes With Butler

NEW YORK, March 22.—Relatives of Mrs. J. Pierpont Edwards, wealthy 72-year-old widow of Bedford Hills, N. Y., were amazed today upon learning that she had eloped with her Scotch butler.

The butler, John Burden, is 43. Mrs. Edwards, a leading member of society, is a great-grandmother. She is worth more than a million dollars.

The relatives of the aged widow were amazed and angry, and her servants were even angrier. Moreover, several of them were out of a job. Burden instantly discharged those who failed to be properly impressed by his rise in the world.

Accusing his former associates of undue familiarity with the master of the house (himself), the ex-butler said:

ington, D. C., and doubtless know that an application for a continuance on my behalf is now pending. Referring to this matter, I made a statement quoted by you in the telegram from you of this date. Depositions of witnesses have been made in this criminal case. I stated that I was ready to have my deposition taken here in any manner requested by the court, and that I desired the whole truth to be told and would offer no objections to any questions that might be propounded to me touching any phase of this matter.

"I know nothing whatsoever of the Continental Oil Co. or any of its actions, except as I have heard them testified to in court or read of them in newspapers of the country."

THREE GARAGE PERMITS ISSUED BY CITY CLERK

Three building permits for garages were issued from the office of the city clerk yesterday afternoon to Judge George H. Seinfeld. The garages which are to cost $100 each will be built on Miami St. A permit also was issued to Harry E. High, 273 Superior-st., for a garage to cost $200 and to the Matthews-Talmadge Oil Co. of Mt. Gilead, for a garage to be built at the rear of the company's filling station at Delaware-st. and Walnut-st. at a cost of $500.

ALTAR SERVICE AT REVIVAL IMPRESSIVE

Rev. E. Radebaugh, Pastor, Preaches Sermon at Calvary Evangelical Church

An impressive altar service followed the sermon at the Calvary Evangelical church last night at Calvary Evangelical church. Attendance was unusually large. Misses Janice Laughman and David Underwood sang a duet, "Jesus Care?" and Reverend Green, pastor of Likens Chapel, M. B. Church, led in prayer.

Rev. E. Radebaugh, pastor, preached on the text, John 3:7, "Marvel not, I say unto you, Ye must be born again."

"According to the Word of God it is necessary that we have a double Christian experience," Reverend Radebaugh said. "When a man is regenerated he is forgiven of his sins, the accumulation of sins, but when he is sanctified he is cleansed from all sin."

"Abraham, Jacob and Isaac were all regenerated, but only Abraham was sanctified."

Population of the city is estimated by the engineers as 35,442 and the area of the city is given as eight square miles with the population density the greatest within one mile of the center of the city.

No reference as to how soon they would be able to install the lines in event they were given a franchise, is made in the report. New equipment would be used.

IT'S NOT HARD TO GROW THIN

People all about you can testify to that. Most of the slender figures seen today have been won in easy ways. Many have been won by Marmola prescription tablets, based on a modern scientific discovery. People have used Marmola for 20 years—millions of boxes of it. Now slender figures in almost every circle show what Marmola does.

A book in each box of Marmola gives the formula and states the scientific reasons for results. So users realize how and why effects are beneficial. A way which has done so much for so many deserves a test from you. Make it now. Watch the results for a little while, then decide. Ask your druggist today for a $1 box of Marmola.

The operating revenues of the Hocking Valley Railway company in 1927 were $21,042,515 against $19,550,258 in 1926, a gain of $1,492,257, and a net income for dividend of $3,751,393 against $2,741,807 in 1926, an increase of $1,009,586, or 36.4 per cent. If all the railroads did as well, there would be little occasion to worry over the future of rail transportation.

New Channel Record Made.
 On the voyage completed when she docked in New York, Tuesday, the Leviathan of the United States Lines is credited with having established a new record between Cherbourg and Southampton, having made the ninety-seven marine miles in four hours and nine minutes.

Commodore Harold Cunningham, in command of the Leviathan, when seen at Quarantine by reporters, said that he would prefer to reserve comment until he had checked up on previous speedy crossings made by the Leviathan and other ships; that all he knew concerning the matter was the time in which the run was made and what he had been told by British newspapers which had sent him congratulatory messages by radio which stated that he had broken the record. Whether better time has been made by smaller boats regularly plying the route, the commodore said, was unknown to him.

Four hours and nine minutes may seem slow time for a distance of ninety-seven miles, but it isn't. Steaming the English channel with its tides and its cross currents is far different from sailing the open sea, and the trip up the Solent is necessarily very slow owing to the shallowness of the channel. Seldom does the Leviathan, the Majestic or the Boregonia pass up or down, and then only at high tide, without stirring up the mud and often touching bottom. Sometimes they stick fast, when they are a bit slow in connecting with high tide, and have to be pulled off or await the flood of the next tide.

Establishing a new Channel record for transatlantic liners may not mean much to us out here, but it does in shipping circles. Each mark thus made is just so much of an advertisement for the vessel making it and the line of which it is a unit. There are always those who want to patronize record-breakers. Just why, nobody has as yet clearly explained. It may be they want something to talk about. It may be that they feel that traveling thus elevates them a bit above the ordinary run. No matter what the cause, there are such people and a lot of them, at that, and hence record performances are deemed valuable.

Such Flights Suicidal.

Wednesday's morning papers carried a report to the effect that three credible citizens of the little town of Porter, up in Maine, had distinguished heard a plane, which apparently was flying low, which had encircled a portion of the town two or three times about 1:30 o'clock last Thursday morning and finally passed away to the northeast. They proposed to be ignorant of the fact that Hinchliffe, had hopped off from England and hence had not reported the matter previously.

It seems to be the rule that on each occasion when a plane is missing in an attempt to make a transatlantic flight, the northeastern part of the United States and the eastern and southeastern parts of Canada are productive of a multiplicity of reports of planes, usually "low-flying planes," having been heard, but sight of such planes is almost always prevented by low clouds, fog or darkness. This has been the case time and again.

Captain Hinchliffe and Elsie MacKay may have crossed the Atlantic and be at present lost in the forests of Maine or Canada, but it's hardly probable.

If there is one liner afloat which is a better storm vessel than any other it is the Republic. No one pretends to know why, but it's an admitted fact. For some reason as yet unknown she has a knack of cutting through seas and battling storms with less resultant motion than any other, and yet her captain, R. B. Miller, says that on the day of the take-off he encountered gales of such velocity that his ship made only eight-one miles in twenty-four hours.

"The wind was so strong that at times the vessel had to heave to," he said. "Our average for the whole day was only 8.4 knots."

"From reports we received it looks as if the storm extended northward, and therefore was directly across the path of the fliers. We kept a double lookout as soon as we were notified by our home office that the two had taken off, and I myself was on the bridge for twenty-four hours, but we saw no sign of the plane."

"The sea was so heavy that we could not see for any distance at all, but if we had sighted the Endeavor it would have been extremely difficult to have launched a small boat with which to reach it. Strong westerly winds prevailed from the 13th to the 16th, and the fliers would have had to buck them. No plane could have possibly lived in the sea."

We may hear more from Canada and Maine regarding low-flying planes, but in the light of the experience detailed by the captain of the Republic it's hardly possible that we will get a report from either that the British ace and his little companion have been found. In the face of such weather as described they hadn't even a ghost of a chance.

It's time for all to recognize the fact that flights across the Atlantic are suicidal, despite the fact that Lindbergh, Chamberlain and Byrd negotiated the ocean in succession. And if this is true of an eastward flight the risk is infinitely greater on a westward flight, as made evident by the fact that one has yet to be accomplished despite repeated attempts.

It would be well were all aviators to heed the warning issued last Monday by the Luft-hansa, the great German air service, to the effect that transoceanic flights will not be feasible until multi-engine machines built for use over high seas are available.

The statement issued went on to say that Hinchliffe's sacrifice was not needed to illustrate the fact that transoceanic flights with present machines are irresponsible undertakings, whatever Lindbergh's and Chamberlain's "lucky ventures" may seem to prove to the contrary, and it advises strongly against the projected transatlantic flight of Herman Koehl, who plans to attempt a crossing to America in June.

Is not this warning timely? Is it not about time that such attempts at North Atlantic flights as that which resulted in last week's tragedy end? Is there any excuse for such attempts, especially in the winter season when such storms as reported by the Republic are to be anticipated? And lastly, is it not about time that such sacrifice of human life at the altar of notoriety cease?

If Miss Spring will live up to her performance of yesterday and the day before, we will be willing to admit that the reputation she has acquired for charm is well deserved.

Sir Robert Baden-Powell says that "the fellow who manages to do a bit of helpful social service for others side by side with his usual daily round of work is the man who has the happiest life in the long run." At last we are beginning to understand the secret of the joy to be had from paraphrasing.

Vagrant Verse.

HILL MEMORIES.

Amid the city's doomed and fretted air
 I grope, a stumbling seeker, round and round.
 Craving some solace I have seldom found.
 Yet gazed at things with tormented heart:
 I go where dangers, moth-like, twist and dart;
 Where stage lights minge and sparkle, trinket-crowns;
 Or where, in quivering transports of sweet sound,
 Some lover, potting, sings a passionate part.
 They stir warm tremors—yet I vaguely know
 There is some light and music that they lack.
 For gleams and splendors out of long ago
 Rise like beseeching ghosts, and beat me back.
 To where, slow-winding up a hilly track,
 I saw the world tinged with a strange soft glow.
 I think how once orchestral seawinds blow,
 While the blood clouds, mute shifters of the scene,
 Looked down on matted rages, darkly green.
 And, far below, on a long bay of blue,
 There I would mount on some bald crag, to view
 The maze of deep-sunk valleys and ravines,
 And catch by glimpses, suiting and serene,
 The face of the Eternal peering through;
 And hear eternal voices, and be one
 With the great world of peak and cloud and tree,
 And the blown waters, and the reddening sun,
 Finding what now I long for fruitlessly,
 What now I seek and seek, but can not see
 In all these tugging towers that act as spurs.
 —Stanley A. Coblenz.

BUT DELAYS CAN HAPPEN.

Bow-Legs? What of It?

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
 Sometimes I fear we have terribly false standards of beauty. We overlook those qualities which go with good health.

It is a remarkable thing that photographs are usually disappointing. They do not reproduce the natural coloring, the data and reflections of the eyes, the rippling muscle-play of the face. They are dead, fixed, staring things.

Yet as we study photographs of persons we know, we discover apparent beauty where we had never suspected it. The features are regular, the imperfections of the skin have disappeared, and all in all here is the picture of an apparently pretty girl. Yet we know "there is something wrong with the picture." What is it?

The fact is, it is the regularity of feature that counts first in determining beauty. You look over the persons you consider to be unusually good-looking. Take them one at a time and feature by feature. You will be surprised to find high cheekbones, excessive breadth of face, narrowness between the eyes, lack of symmetry in the face, a nose irregular and one-sided, a chin receding or too prominent, outstanding ears or ears too small or too large, one eye more prominent than the other, etc., etc.

It is painful to be so brutally frank about this, but I want you to wake up to the fact that had as you think you are all your neighbors are just as bad or even worse. You are all beyond words to worry over your own features or any one of them. It is more important to have clean, clear skin, natural redness of lip and cheek, bright, sparkling, clear eyes, white teeth, firm muscles and elastic step—these are far more important than to remake your face to conform to some "type" immortalized by Greek or other ancient.

Suppose you are bow-legged. What of it? I'd rather have crooked legs than a crooked character. You may not train yourself into straight-leggedness, but you can cultivate your mind, storing it with interesting material. You can learn to smile and to laugh. You can have a clear skin and bright eyes. You can have a tireless body. In short, you can cultivate qualities that will make you attractive to a wide circle of admiring friends. This is far better than to have a surgeon take you apart and readjust your bones, merely because they offend your self-established ideas of beauty.

Let us make up our minds to grow old gracefully. Let us accept the complexion and skin and figures that belong to our period. Let us not be too critical of our own looks, nor too fault-finding with what the Creator gave us.

To my mind, health is the first essential to beauty. We can not afford to risk good health by needless operations. Let us cultivate our own style of beauty and depend on the store of vigorous health and well-filled mind to make our way through this pretty good world.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

X. Y. Z. Q.—What are some of the symptoms of gall-bladder trouble?
 A.—Can't wait to be entirely removed? How?
 A.—Among the symptoms of gall-bladder trouble are: malaise, headache, flatulence, coated tongue, loss of appetite, vomiting and pain extending to the right shoulder.

2.—Yes. Special treatment is necessary. For particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.
 G. M. E. Q.—What do you advise for varicose veins?
 A.—If the varicose veins are slight, bandaging or wearing an elastic stocking is often effective, but in most cases surgical procedure is necessary. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

M. D. F. Q.—How can thin legs be made stouter?
 A.—Exercise and gaining weight in general, should bring about results. Lame, skating, brisk walking, climbing, etc., should all be used in the development of your legs.—Copyright, 1928. Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Dr. Copeland will answer to the best of his paper questions on medical, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Editorial Opinion.

FOR A FEDERAL DOLE.

Representative Berger, of Milwaukee, the only Socialist in congress, has introduced a bill for compulsory unemployment insurance, the employers and employees contributing equal shares to the insurance fund, and the United States government contributing a third equal share.

Mr. Berger is the only Socialist member of congress. That is to say, he is the only member of the Socialist party. But he is not the only socialist. He is not the only member who favors socialism in one form or another.

The Berger proposal to milk the federal government of a large sum in payment of unemployment doles is not only supported by members of the Socialist party but has the support of "liberals" in general. The same kind of suggestion was recently advanced by the New Republic.

After all, there is nothing essentially new in the Berger bill. It does not provide anything which in its essence is different from anything that the federal government is now doing. The plan for an unemployment dole is on all fours with the Sheppard-Towner maternity act, which has been in effect for years.

Under the Sheppard-Towner maternity act, the federal government has paid out large sums for supervising special work for the boys and girls' clubs at the state fair in Colorado; for the activities of a laboratory technician in Montana; for pediatric fellowships in Ohio; for scholarships for nurses in Virginia; and for other miscellaneous medical activities.

Social service workers are unanimously in favor of the federal maternity act, under which the federal government is gradually instituting a system of government medicine. Social service workers probably will unanimously support the Berger bill for an unemployment dole.

The Berger bill will never pass as long as it has Representative Berger's name attached to it. But there is a good chance that a similar bill, introduced by some Republican or Democrat, will become a law within the next few years. The man who believes that the plan for government dole has little chance are not aware of the persistent trend of government at Washington, and the influence of "statism" with wide prestige and bureaucratic tendencies.—Chicago Journal of Commerce.

MORAL LANCING IN THE SENATE.

Following an adverse report by the interstate commerce committee of the federal senate upon the reapportionment of John J. Esch as interstate commerce commissioner, the senate voted against renewing his term of service. The sole charge against Mr. Esch was that he had changed his vote in an important interstate vote case to please certain influential Pennsylvanians, including Secretary Mellon. Senators from southern coal-producing states led the opposition.

Clearly the senate had no evidence in support of the grave charge of insincerity and self-seeking brought against Mr. Esch. He appeared before the committee and made vigorous denial of the imputation of bad faith. His vote, he insisted, was in accordance with the law and the facts as he, after careful study, understood them. If he had voted the other way two years before in an identical case, he said, the action was taken with equal loyalty to law and principle. Further consideration of the issue had compelled him to change his views.

The majority of the senate preferred to assume deliberate dishonesty on the part of Mr. Esch. His long and distinguished public career did not count. His knowledge and grasp of transportation problems, his part in drafting the important Esch-Cummings transportation act now in force, the high opinion of him entertained by railroad experts, were given no weight by his opponents.

This sort of conduct does not encourage self-respecting men to accept appointment to public office. Neither does it make for independent and intelligent decisions of judicial or semijudicial questions of the type dealt with by the Interstate Commerce commission.

There has been talk of an imminent protest by the other commissioners against the senate's rejection of Mr. Esch and even of their resignation in a body. Probably no such startling demonstration is to be expected. But the Esch episode is not ended. It may have deplorable consequences.—Chicago News.

America's Heroes and Legends.

BY GARRETT P. SERVINO.

After all, what have these famous "de-bunkers" of American history accomplished? It still appears very clearly that George Washington carried the revolution on his shoulders and prevented royal and aristocratical rule from becoming the settled system on this side of the Atlantic, although he did swear occasionally, and although he neither did, nor confess that he did, cut down the cherry tree. It appears, too, that the freedom of this country from foreign control was won by bloodshed and battles fought by common men, and would never have been achieved without them. The attempt to obscure the glory of those whose struggles won the battles by belittling them and leaving their name out of the books, belongs to the Don Quixote order.

"Stand, cowards," cried he as loud as he could. "Stand, you ignoble creatures and fly not basely from a single knight who dares encounter you all!" At the same time, the wind rising, the mill sails began to move, when Don Quixote cried, "Base miscreants," cried he, "though you may have the formula which I have just said, you shall pay for your arrogance." So, covering himself with his shield and crouching his lance, he rushed with Ruscimante's utmost speed upon the first windmill he could come at, and running his lance into the sail, it whirled about with such swiftness that the rapidity of the motion presently broke the lance into shivers and hurled away both knight and horse along with it, till down he fell, rolling a good way off in the field.

It seems as if the stories, or "legends," if you please, of Paul Revere, the Minute Men, the bridge, Nathan Hale, Ethan Allen, Bunker Hill, Molly Pitcher, Patrick Henry, Dr. J. Jones, Jackson at New Orleans and dozens of others, that have been to America what Rome's heroic legends were to Rome and England's to England, appear to the debunking knights of reformed history like the windmills of Don Quixote. They are treated as if calculated to instill a love of war in the hearts of the young, whereas in fact they only instill a love of country. But love of country, patriotism, is the biggest of the windmills. Fortunately it is also the most perilous to those attacking it, and most perilous in proportion as the attack is underhanded. Imagining America without patriotism—handed over to the tender mercies of "internationalism."

It is not true, either, that teaching patriotism promotes war. On the contrary it is, like preparedness, a disavowal from war, by making the people united, self-confident, and formidable in the face of aggression. Every great idea, every great cause, must have its symbol. Never in the world's history has this been otherwise, and never can it be otherwise, because the principle is rooted in human nature. The symbols of a nation are, on one hand, its great heroic characters, whether of war or peace, and on the other hand its patriotic legends which are the nursery tales of its youthful citizenry. It is foolish as well as unfair to pick such things, to pieces and destroy their meaning by hypercriticism, by criticism that is without sympathy and consequently without comprehension.

The history of every people has gone through the same mill, and always with the same, ultimate result. I recall that in my college days all the great legends of ancient Rome were thrown into the gutter by theoretical reformers of history who had a formula which demonstrated that such things naturally could not be true. But alas for the formula! It appears that the legends were just as true as they were intended to be, just as true as human memory mingled with human jealousies and human weaknesses will allow anything to be that has to be handed down by word of mouth, while they really must have contained the gist of the matter. It seems that monuments and documents can lie as well as tradition, and when they lie they do it more cunningly.

There appears to be no crying need for making American heroes less small.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

London in Winter.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

London, March 22—This is a first visit to London in winter and after a topsy-turvy trip across the choppy channel, the town seems to droop in the mantle of thin gray. Yet the heart-beat of London has a brisk murmur, an overtone of solidity and is stimulating and narrow.

London has an imperial stoddiness that is more noticeable coming out of easy-going France. It accentuates the difference between a republic and a monarchy. Here you feel it would be less majestic to whom in the street or "dunk" sinkers in your coffee. Dignity is enshrined.

Even servants appear superior and you sense a faint sneer behind their "Very good, sir." A hotel courier corrected me the first shot. I told him to carry a black valve. "You mean the portmanteau?" he inquired.

Taxis start here at a shilling—some one and six—and are higher for long hauls than in New York. Coming out of Victoria station, one sees the usual London hubbly-bubbly—bobbies with their chin-strapped helmets, newspaper vendors, enshrouded in billboards with "cramming" banners, bonneted old cockney women selling Scotch heather for a ha'pence.

Also crippled service men, their breasts glittering with decorations, selling matches, kerf toy hawkers, the stream of lumbering buses criss-crossed with gaudy ads; the bleak and bloated frothing coves who stagger from pub to pub, spats, monocles and six hats at noonday.

There is something comfortable about London's gray-striped buildings so mellow and formidable with age. They give forth an aura of durability typical of Britain. As I passed the parliament buildings Big Ben was booming the noon hour.

I had the driver circle down to the Thames embankment entrance to the Savoy. The benches are still dotted with the hopeless unemployed who seem to be England's eternal economic question marks living on the government "dole." The American is immediately spotted by beggars.

The English hotel servant can not understand why the newly-arrived traveler does not wish to be refreshed by "a pot of tea." He unlocks your door, deposits your baggage, throws back your curtains and inquires, "Are you sir?" A refusal sends him away in a sort of silent bewilderment. I really wanted a pot of ice water, but I'm only in London for a few days. It takes a week for the ice water idea to percolate.

In the midst of a bath, the telephone rang and thinking the voice inquiring, "Are you there?" was a jesting American acquaintance, I replied, "With my hair in a braid." I did not know whether it was a sample of British humor or not, but it was immediately switched over to the hair-dressing parlor. The voice, developed, was that of the telephone operator wanting to know if I wished mail sent up. My attempt to be merry confused her. She thought I wanted my hair braided, I suppose.

After luncheon at the renowned Simpsons on the Strand I set off for Piccadilly circus—the Times square of London—and managed to cross it twice safely despite the left-handed traffic. There seems to be more Americans here than in Paris and shops are busier. Prices are sky high.

In Burlington arcade I dropped into a vest establishment—the "By Appointment to R. H. H. the Prince of Wales" sign tricked me—on an evening vest. The clerk insisted I wanted a waistcoat, but I held out with native Missourian stubbornness for a vest. He quoted me the price of each sample for a half dozen lot. His psychology won, for I bought three, whereas I wanted one. I should have started off just looking for a vest button and let him talk me into a vest.

At dusk a fog as thick as pea soup sprang up and back of the Savoy a courtyard stage, faintly discernible in the mist was chanting a dolorous song to the accompaniment of a wheezy accordion. All that was needed was a mournful hound dog to voice his woe and that body in the Thames would be the best friend.—Copyright, 1928, by the McNaught-Syndicate, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

A correspondent writes in and asks for a paragraph on "tears." He says he knows a person—he doesn't say whether man or woman—who has been winning every battle all through life, by crying. Such cases are rare. Thousands of families are dominated by the most fearful member. Women, especially, are experts with the weapons of tears. They cry to victory. Men, naturally, stand fast. However unjust the cause cried for, the weeper wins in competition with men. There is frequently great injustice in the use of tears. To win by such methods is bad for the weeper as well as for the defeated family. The man who writes in asks advice. The advice is to investigate the justice of the complaint or the justice of the desire—and then do the best he knows without being influenced one way or the other by tears. Tears, too often, are merely a clever tool in the hands of a clever person.

There is this to be said, while on the subject of tears. Women, too often, are bearing their share of the world's burdens as never before. They are more helpful and efficient as wives and mothers. They are far removed from the harem-idea of the orientals, or the "keep under glass" idea of the women of the age of Queen Victoria. They have always been men equals intellectually and now they are coming to be equal in privileges—nearly. It must be said to their credit that the modern successful wife resorts to the use of the club—far less than her ancestors did. Far less demands such an admission.

By some strange trick of human nature the man who gets most excited by some fancied injustice, the man who runs to his neighbors and the newspapers and complains the bitterest, is usually the one least fortified with the facts. He means well and he is often a good friend because of his useful frankness. But there is something in that type of man, some connection between his tendency to quick sympathy and his tendency to draw conclusions based on superficial investigation.

Love is perhaps overestimated as "the thing that makes the world go round." There is, of course, no legitimate substitute for love. It is a beautiful emotion, and it is one of the things that differentiates man from the beast. But after all the thing that makes the world go round is pretty much the hard, day-by-day work that people do—whether they like it or love it or not.

D. & M. VICTOR IN 25,000 DAMAGE SUIT

May Risk Losses in Action
After Trial of Two Days

The accident, which occurred at Newman's Crossing north of Prospect on Sept. 5, 1926, when a Ford sedan in which Mrs. Rish and her husband, John Rish, were riding, was hit by a C. D. & M. car, resulted in injury to Mrs. Rish and the death of her husband. Mr. Rish was driving.

Among the important witnesses testifying in the trial were Mr. and Mrs.

returned by a jury in Common Pleas Court last night following trial lasting two days.

The verdict was reported at 9 o'clock last night after the jury had deliberated about two and a half hours.

The accident, which occurred at Newman's Crossing north of Prospect on Sept. 5, 1926, when a Ford sedan in which Mrs. Rish and her husband, John Rish, were riding, was hit by a C. D. & M. car, resulted in injury to Mrs. Rish and the death of her husband. Mr. Rish was driving.

Among the important witnesses testifying in the trial were Mr. and Mrs.

George Hageman of this city, who were driving north from Prospect and saw the accident.

Mrs. Rish's suit for damages was based on the claim that view of the track to the north was obscured by buildings and other obstructions and that the Rish automobile became stalled in a depression in the roadway along the rails.

Testimony was introduced by the C. D. & M. to show that proper precautions were not taken by occupants of the Rish car in approaching the crossing.

In the trial Mrs. Rish was represented by the law firm of Mouser, Young & Mouser and W. P. Moloney acted as attorney for the C. D. & M. Attorneys for Mrs. Rish announced they would file motion for a new trial before a jury in Court of Common Pleas.

The suit was brought by John Zachman, contractor who moved the building and had charge of remodeling and repair work after the transfer. Zachman alleges that a balance of $2,306.79 is due him and he asks judgment for that amount.

The church trustees, defendants in the action, assert that after deducting credits to which they are entitled, only $1,038.13 is coming to the contractor. Among the credits are items which they set up for alleged defects in Zachman's work. They offer to settle for $1,038.13.

Hayes Thompson and Carhart & Warner are attorneys for Zachman and Wiedemann & Patton represent the church.

Divorce Is Asked

Divorce on grounds of gross neglect and desertion is asked by Zenus R. Kinney in a suit filed in Court of Common Pleas today against Helen J. Kinney. They were married in Lima on Feb. 25, 1920, and have no children.

In his petition, filed through Attorney L. E. Myers, the plaintiff charges that his wife displayed absolute lack of affection for him and that finally she left him on Feb. 15, 1927, without making known her destination.

Mrs. Dodd Brings Suit

The third suit growing out of an automobile collision which occurred on Mt. Vernon-av on March 23, 1927, was filed in Court of Common Pleas late yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Elsie Dodd against Elmer J. Schoenlaub.

Mrs. Dodd asks judgment for $2,961 for injuries received in the accident and for damage to her automobile, a Buick sedan.

Prior to filing of this petition, two other suits were brought yesterday against Schoenlaub, one by George E. Knapp and the other by his wife Mrs. Edna Knapp, for injuries received by Mrs. Knapp, who was a passenger in the Dodd machine.

Mr. Knapp asks judgment for $953 and Mrs. Knapp asks for $7,500.

The charge in all three suits is that Schoenlaub turned his car to the left in front of the Dodd machine, coming a short distance behind, without giving warning and contrary to traffic rules. Mrs. Dodd, the petition state, was unable to avoid a collision, which culminated in her machine striking a telephone post. Schoenlaub was driving a Ford coupe.

John H. Bartram is attorney for the plaintiffs.

Church Figures in Suit

A dispute over what amount of money is due for work involved in moving St. Paul's Lutheran Church to its present location at the corner of Bellefontaine-av and Windsor-st is the basis of a law suit being heard today

Asks for Partition

Suit asking for partition of the estate of Aaron Wesley Barnhill was brought in Court of Common Pleas today by Cora E. Barnhill against Harry Barnhill and others. The property involved is described as lot 3083 in Loyer's fourth addition to the city of Marion. The petition was filed through the law firm of Carhart & Warner.

W. Colmery and Two Children Die in Crash Near Worthington

St. Giles, March 22.—W. W. Colmery and two children, Catherine and Margaret, were instantly killed yesterday when the truck they were driving was struck by a Pennsylvania passenger train at Shrock Road Crossing north of Worthington.

Colmery and his two children are survived by Mrs. Colmery and a four-month-old baby, two sisters, Marjorie and Sylvia, both in high school, and Mrs. A. A. Colmery, and High School here.

He is about 30 years of age. He was near his home when the accident occurred.

TWO KILLED

Explosion Occurs Aboard Destroyer Tender Whitney

Washington, March 22.—Two enlisted men were burned to death and others seriously injured, and a warrant officer was less seriously hurt, in a gasoline explosion aboard the Destroyer Tender Whitney, in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, Navy Department announced today.

The explosion occurred yesterday night.

BURY DUMMY?

Raise Body To Settle Question of Banker's Death

Maquoketa, Iowa, March 22.—Believing that a wax dummy was buried in his grave instead of the body of George Willinger, Sabula banker, several depositories in the closed institution have petitioned the board of directors of Jackson county to open the grave.

The board has refused, but it informed the petitioners that if they would raise the money the grave would be reopened.

Willinger died in a Chicago hospital several weeks ago and his body was buried at Sabula. His bank was closed the next day and immediately news was circulated that he had been buried and that a dummy had been buried in the grave.

CLASSMATES PALLBEARERS FOR VICTIM OF SUBMARINE

Washington, March 22.—With six Annapolis classmates acting as pallbearers, the body of Lieut. Graham M. Fitch, who met his death in the ill-fated submarine S-4, will be carried to its final rest in Arlington National Cemetery late this afternoon.

A final tribute of "taps" and a volley of guns will be paid by a squad of blue-jackets.

It was Fitch who tapped out messages to the Morse code from the light of the S-4, and asked "How much longer?" for hours after the submarine was rammed by the Hauling.

Thousands Say Best for Piles

Don't allow yourself to be discouraged because the treatments you have been taking have failed to rid you of piles.

Don't allow yourself to be discouraged because the treatments you have been taking have failed to rid you of piles. If you haven't tried Peterson's Ointment, you have probably missed the one preparation that you should have used first because this marvelous healing preparation seldom fails.

Read this letter from a well known Michigan Contractor:

"Received the Box of Peterson's Ointment, used it and had a real night's sleep, the first in a long time. I have been so relieved that I cover by the Ointment and recommend it to my friends. Any suffering from itching piles sure get their money's worth. If my reference is good for anything, I will be pleased to have you use my name."—Mr. R. B. Hindall, Whitmore Lake, Mich.

Many a man has rid himself of Piles with one 30 cent box of Peterson's Ointment after expensive treatments had failed.—Adv.

Catarrhal Deafness Unnecessary

In catarrhal deafness there is a constant inflammation of the little air passage from throat to ear. This partially closes this tube, so the air cannot pass freely and the result is distressing, rumbling noises, feeling of fullness and dulled hearing. Relieve the inflammation of mucous membranes with Hall's Catarrhal Medicine, and this condition clears up, inflammation is reduced, and hearing quickly restores a normal condition. Successful for over 40 years. Ask your druggist. Price 85c.

TWO CARS STOLEN

Stanfield Auto Found on Olney; Mr. Horton Machine Missing

A Chrysler sedan, belonging to F. H. Stanfield, of Edison, one of two cars taken by joyriders last night, was found by the police this morning parked on Olney. A Buick Master six sedan, the property of H. E. Horton, 1373 E. Center st., had not been recovered by the police this afternoon.

Both cars were taken between 9 and 11 o'clock, the Stanfield car from S. Prospect and the Horton car from in front of the Horton Apartments. The Buick was described as being a 1928 model, and carrying Ohio license 439-291, motor No. 1510,605 and factory number 1472,412.

SERVICE AT CHURCH IS WELL ATTENDED

Women of Salem Evangelical Church Plan Program for Service

Impersonating a Russian immigrant, Mrs. Grace Parlette Moffitt gave an interesting talk at the "Indian night" service last night at Salem Evangelical Church. The service, which was well attended, was arranged by women of the church as their part in the activities honoring dedication of the newly modeled edifice last Sunday.

Miss Edith Ebling gave the scripture reading, and Mrs. Florence Shaw, soprano, soloist at Epworth M. E. Church, contributed a delightful solo selection, "Come Ye Blessed." Scott, Miss Doris Jacobs beautifully sang "Take Up Thy Cross," Grunt, and the Salem choir sang "We Praise Thee O God." Lorena, Mrs. Harry Williams and Miss Edith Ebling played an organ and piano duet, "Fantasia," Demarest.

A "city night" service will be held at the church at 7:30 o'clock tonight at which time Miss Edith Ebling, church organist, will be heard in organ recital. The public is invited to attend. A free will silver offering will be taken.

CHECKS CASES WHERE BLINDNESS THREATENED

Miss Hilda Maxwell, inspection nurse of the division of blind of the State Board of Health, was in the city yesterday and today checking up cases where blindness is threatened and where no money is available for treatment.

A number of cases were examined by Miss Maxwell. In discussing what is being accomplished by the department in the cure of blindness, Miss Maxwell told of a case in Upper Sandusky where a man had been totally blind for 25 years and had received his eyesight and was now able to drive an automobile as the result of treatment given by the state department.

SMALL CITIES TO BE FAVORED, IS CLAIM

Kiwanis Luncheon Speaker Predicts Growth of Industrial District

A decentralization of small industries now in the larger cities that will place this section of Ohio one of the greatest industrial centers of the United States, was predicted by R. A. Gramin, president of the Greater Marion Co. of Lima, in an address before the members of the Kiwanis club at the Hotel Harding at noon today.

The small industries in the large cities, the speaker said, who are now hampered by high taxes, labor trouble and other unsatisfactory industrial conditions, have reached the stage where they are now seeking the smaller cities and towns and this section of the state within an radius of 200 miles stands the best chance for securing a large number of these industries.

Marion should and can secure many of these industries, the speaker pointed out due to the great number of tourists who will visit the city this summer.

Among the many tourists who will visit Marion will be many business men who are seeking new locations for their plants, and if properly impressed with the city and the surrounding, Marion will stand a good chance of being a favored location.

The advent of the motor truck, the speaker declared, is the factor that is bringing about this decentralization of industry. With 3,000,000 miles of highways compared to the 250,000 miles of railroads, the possibilities of the motor bus is unlimited. Freight can now be handled, especially household goods, for what it costs to crate them for railroad shipping, he pointed out.

WOMAN AWARDED $20,000 IN HEART BALM BY JURY

Cleveland, March 22.—Gertrude M. Gishman, 22, New York and Atlantic City dancer, was awarded $20,000 by a common pleas court jury here in a breach of promise suit against Duke Kerekes, theatre and concert violinist.

Miss Gishman had sued for $50,000, claiming her heart had been broken because the violinist had failed to marry a Cleveland woman.

Kerekes did not appear in court. He left Cleveland yesterday, shortly after the case was concluded, according to his attorney.

GANG VICTIM

"Diamond Joe" Expedito Shot To Death in Front of Home

Chicago, March 22.—"Diamond Joe" Expedito, powerful Italian leader whose picturesque career has been lived on the twilight border between roguism and respectability, is dead today, a victim of gangster bullets.

"Diamond Joe"—christened Giovanni—was shot down within a few feet of his home last night as he returned from a twenty-fifth ward political meeting. He died on the way to the county hospital.

Three men, armed with revolvers and sawed-off shotguns, poured a volley of leaden bullets and poisoned slug into Expedito's back from a closed automobile in which they had pulled up to the curb.

INVALID'S THOUGHTS TURN TO "SHUT-INS"

Mrs. William J. Gorton Spends Time Making Others Happy Despite Handicap

While guests at the Waddell Ladies' Home, E. Center st., are enjoying the serious and cheerful coming in over their recently installed radio, their thoughts turn gratefully to Mrs. William J. Gorton, Lafayette st., to whom the credit goes for its purchase and installation. Mrs. Gorton, who has been an invalid for more than three years, in enjoying her own radio, thought of other "shut-ins" whose access of entertainment were limited, and soon interested her scores of friends in the proposition of contributing to her own donation in a fund for the purchase of a radio for the home.

The telephone was pressed into service by Mrs. Gorton and for a period of several weeks contributions poured in from friends, organizations, clubs and Sunday School classes. The radio was purchased with the co-operation of the trustees, who contributed to the fund.

UNION PLANS OPEN MEETING ON FRIDAY

OT MACHINES ARE INVADING CHICAGO

City Menaced by Gambling Devices: Injunction Granted

March 22—Indignation has spread to all parts of Chicago over the invasion of the slot machine menace.

Drug stores, candy shops, pool halls, barber shops and cigar stores have had the devices installed. Impetus was given the movement when Judge Philip L. Sullivan granted a slot machine company an injunction against police interfering with the operation of the street and 25 cent variety.
The owners of the machine claim they are placed in the stores and shops "purely for the amusement of patrons. In addition the owners pointed out the fact that a product is "sold" for the coin inserted inasmuch as the machine dispenses a package of mint tablets.

Gambling Devices
Police curfew treated the machines gambling devices. A hue and cry was raised in the church and by school authorities who said school children were spending their lunch money in gambling for the coveted "trade checks" which occasionally issue from the lower slot when the wheels of chance turn to the correct symbols.

After the protest, Judge Sullivan dissolved his injunction and placed the matter entirely in the hands of the police.

A canvass of Chicago revealed the machines were as numerous as before the injunction was dissolved.

When asked why he had a slot machine installed in his cigar store, one owner said:

Have No Choice
"Well, I have to keep it in. You know I run punch boards and have this little dice game—minor gambling —and they told me if I wanted to keep the boards and dice I had to put in the machines so they could get their "cut." What can I say and what can I do? The big boys want their cut and I get 40 percent of the intake of the slot machine and the outfit gets the other."

He declined to mention the "cut"
or who "they" referred to.

Chief of Police Michael Hughes announced he would start a war upon the machine and would compel store owners to remove them.

BRITISH ARMY DROPS ALCOHOL FOR SOLDIERS

London—The British Army of the future will win its battles on cocoa.

Cocoa, according to an official report of the Health of the Army, has replaced former stores which were largely stocked with beer and ale, and they now display on their shelves "soft" drinks, while the tea and cocoa units are prominently in evidence.

The dropping of alcohol from the soldier's daily life has in no way lowered his vitality, according to the report, which states that the health of the British Army as never been better.

versities.

CARRIAGE FOR FAMOUS CANNON FALLS APART

Cleveland, March 22—The 33-pound cannon captured by Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry's fleet 185 years ago in an engagement with the British battleships under Commodore Barclay in Put-in-Bay, will soon be lying on the sidewalk in Public Square here, unless it is mounted on a new gun carriage.
The old carriage which was made of wood, is now decaying and will soon fall apart, it was said.

The cannon is the property of the Western Reserve Historical Society.

PLOWING CONTEST AT BELLEFONTAINE

Bellefontaine, March 22—A plowing contest, believed to be the only one of its kind ever scheduled in Ohio is to be held here March 29, or if weather conditions are unsuitable it will be postponed until April 5th.

Three hundred dollars in cash prizes have been offered to the winners of the novel contest.

The contest committee has provided for three classes of entry: One for youths of 20 years and younger, using horse drawn plows of the sulky, walker or gang type; a class for men 30 years or over using horse drawn plows of the foregoing types; and a class for farmer owned and operated tractor outfits.

Seven prizes ranging from $5 to $35, will be awarded for each event.

"SHREW" CAPTURED IN TRAP AT XENIA

Xenia, March 22—A shrew, a tiny mouse like animal, was captured in a trap near here recently by Harry Arnold.

Although several species of the shrew are said to be found in Ohio but few have been captured.

These small animals have ears and a snout similar to that of a mouse but burrow like moles according to the State Fish and Game Department. Unlike the mole it has feet for running like a mouse while the mole has all four feet designed for burrowing.

Usually they are found totally blind relying upon their sense of smell for their food.

YORK HOUSE TO BECOME HOME FOR KING'S GUESTS

London—York House, the unassum-ing wing of St. James' Palace which for several years past has been the London home of the Prince of Wales, is likely to become a royal guest-house when the Prince vacates it in the near future.

It is understood King George favors such a plan, and should he give his consent the residence will be refurnished generally and then used to house any visiting Royal monarchs.

The Prince is expected to move into Marlborough House, the former resident of the late Queen Alexandra, some time about the middle of the year.

The consistency of Hudson leadership is but the performance of its first principle, resolution and tradition—to always lead in value.

Thus it was the first car at moderate price to give truly great performance, smoothness and reliability—the industry's standard today.

Thus it was the first in the development of American closed cars, and such smart turnouts as the Town Car and Speedster.

The Coach—a Hudson invention—turned the entire industry to closed cars.

The Super-Six principle and its companion invention that turns waste heat to power, is the most efficient combination in development and transmission of power, within our knowledge.

In the beautifully designed and luxuriously finished bodies that feature the new Hudson Super-Sixes the same relation of values obtain as made the Super-Six chassis famous.

VISITORS PRESENT

Other Cities Send Groups to Central Christian Revival

With delegations from Mansfield, Kenton and Kirkpatrick at the revival service last night at Central Christian Church, the large auditorium was filled to capacity. Rev. J. J. Tisdall of Mansfield, the evangelist in charge, preached on the subject, "The World's Greatest Tragedy," centering his sermon on the crucifixion. A male quartet from Kirkpatrick sang several special numbers and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Tuckerman of Huntington, W. Va., who are directing the drive for the revival, sang a duet. There were five conversions. A delegation from Caldwellonia will attend the service tonight when Rev.

Frederic Tisdall will preach on the subject, "The Lost Christ." Friday night Mrs. Tuckerman will direct a Bible class of 135 students in a Bible drill and song fest.

SCOUT TRAINING TO BE DEMONSTRATED

Displays Will Be Placed in Windows of Local Establishments

Training received by Marion Scouts will be demonstrated in a series of window displays being arranged to April 13 in connection with the observance of National Boy Scout Week. The local scout council backed by the Boy Scout Club.

Practically every phase of scouting will be demonstrated, it was announced at a meeting of Marion Scoutmasters and their assistants held at the Y. M. C. A. under the direction of Scout Executive W. C. Brown last night.

Marion County Scout Troops will also be called on to assist in handling crowds that will attend the dedication of the Harding Memorial during the latter part of May or early in June. Executive Brown announced.

In preparation for this work patrol leaders and troop officers will meet April 5 when drill plans will be made and arrangements completed for the dedication.

March to Memorial
On April 28 local scouts will march to the Harding Memorial where they will hold a service to the Honor Guard. The guard will be taken off duty on May 1.

Plans were completed to place nearly 100 Scout books in the Marion Public Library. A special shelf will be constructed by the Scouts and the plans will be funded by assessments from each scout and donations from the outside.

According to present plans, one Scout from Marion will be sent to the third International Jamboree in London during August, 1929. All expenses will be paid by the local council. This is the outstanding event in the Scout world.

Plans for the observance of Boy Scout Week in Marion under the supervision of Scout Troops were completed. A marble tournament for fifth and sixth grade boys will be held on April 10 and 11. On April 12 seventh grade boys of the city will participate in a kite flying contest. Prizes will be awarded winners of the events.

Display To Be Unusual
The window display of Scout activities will be one of the biggest things ever attempted locally. Executive Brown stated. Practically every branch of work taken up will be shown by various troops in windows donated by Marion merchants.

In the afternoon of April 13 a Scout parade headed by the M. G. Scout Band will be held here. In the evening the court of honor will sit in Star Auditorium when merit badges will be awarded. A band concert will be given by the M. G. Scout band.

ELMER E. KEELER, 54, DIES IN OLEAN, N. Y.

Erie Railroad Employee of Marion Is Stricken at Home of Daughter

Elmer E. Keeler 54, Erie Railroad employee residing at 808 S. Prospect, died suddenly yesterday morning at Olean, N. Y., where, with Mrs. Keeler, he had been spending the winter with their daughter, Mrs. Charles Fowler. Word of his death was received here by a daughter, Mrs. Leonard Shepherd, Chicago, who, with Mrs. M. Murphy, Chestnut-st., also a daughter, left last night for Olean.

Cause of Mr. Keeler's death was not given in the word received by relatives here. He had been suffering for some time from stomach trouble and it is believed the disease may have brought about his death. Funeral services were to be conducted at Olean, Mr. Keeler's childhood home, today or Saturday, and burial made there.

Mr. and Mrs. Keeler had resided in Marion for five years. Mr. Keeler was a member of the First Church of Nazarene and was active in religious work. He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Loberia Garbrick, his daughters, Mrs. Shepherd, Mrs. Murphy, this city, Mrs. Chester Danner, of Toledo, Mrs. John Graves of Buffalo, N. Y., and Mrs. Fowler, at whose home he died; four sons, Millard G., at home, Robert and Ray Keeler, of Olean, and Guy Keeler, of Salamanca, N. Y., and a sister, residing in Olean. His parents preceded him in death.

IS IMPROVED
The condition of Mrs. C. H. Berenger, who is seriously ill at her home, 209 Forest-st., remains unimproved, it was reported yesterday. Mrs. Berenger suffered a stroke of apoplexy Jan. 12.

Chinese drink little water; they think water makes them sick. They drink tea instead, because the leaves are supposed to purify the water.

96 CANDIDATES ARE TAKEN INTO EAGLES

Class One of Largest in History of Organization; Membership Over 1,500

By Eric Actie, No. 337, Fraternal Order of Eagles, celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary last night with a special program which included initiation of a class of 96 candidates, one of the largest in the history of the organization.

They brought the membership up to more than 1,500, the highest mark reached up to this time. The organization started 25 years ago with a membership of 67.

About 10 of these charter members are still living and in good standing on the lodge books. At last night's meeting it was voted unanimously to present life memberships to all of those still enrolled from the charter list.

Presentation of the life memberships will take place at a special meeting scheduled for the last Sunday in April, when another large class of candidates will be initiated.

Close of Campaign
This meeting will also mark the close of a membership campaign which has been in progress since January 15 and which up to his time has resulted in enrollment of 208 new members. The original plan was to bring the drive to a close with last night's anniversary event but extension of the time was decided upon when reports showed that two divisions of the lodge entered in the contest were tied, each having obtained 134 new members. The two contesting forces are captained by John Abel, secretary of the lodge, and his brother, Roy Abel.

Nearly 400 at Meeting
The initiation last night was in charge of past president of the lodge, all stations being occupied by members who have been executive heads of the organization in former years.

Talks by the old-timers featured a program which followed the initiation. This program also included a dinner. The meeting was attended by approximately 300 members of the lodge in addition to the 96 candidates making up the class initiated.

DITCH IS CONSIDERED BY COMMISSIONERS
Three County Boards Open Proceedings on Fletcher Project

Commissioners of Marion, Morrow and Crawford Counties met at the Courthouse in Bucyrus, yesterday, and opened proceedings in connection with proposed construction of the Fletcher ditch, a tri-county project, petitioned for by Crawford County land owners.

A joint organization of the three boards was effected by electing Nelson Geiger, Crawford County commissioner, as president.

The route of the proposed improvement, which would be about six miles in length, will be viewed by members of the three boards on April 20 and first hearing will take place April 27.

The improvement would include extension of a ditch which now has its southern outlet at the south line of Crawford County emptying into a creek which is a tributary of the Whetstone river.

The plan is to widen, deepen and straighten the present ditch and the creek into which it now empties. This would provide an extension into Marion and Morrow Counties with the outlet in the Whetstone River.

Representatives of the surveys of the three counties were also present at yesterday's meeting. Marion County was represented by Clyde C. Caldwell, deputy surveyor.

SPEAKS ON "THRILLS"
At a fairly well attended service last night at Wesley M. E. Church, Rev. G. A. Whitlock, pastor, gave one of a series of special lectures, speaking on the subject of "Thrills."

GAS FORCES WOMAN TO SLEEP IN CHAIR

Adlerika, in addition to intestinal cleansing, checks the growth of intestinal bacteria and bacilli.

"Nights I had to sit up in a chair, I had stomach gas so bad. I took Adlerika and nothing I eat hurts me now and I sleep fine."—Mrs. Glenn Butler.

The simple mixture of boric acid, glycerine, salicylic acid, (known as Adlerika), has a most surprising DOUBLE action. First, it acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel (most medicines act on lower bowel only) and removes foul matter that often poisons the system for months. Second, Adlerika clears all GAS and sourness from stomach and bowels, bringing INSTANT relief from stomach trouble.

And in addition, Adlerika removes metabolic poisons which cause neuritis, rheumatism, etc.

Dr. H. L. Shonb, New York, writes: "Adlerika, in addition to its intestinal cleansing, checks the growth of intestinal bacteria and bacilli."

Dr. J. Weaver: "In my 50 years' practice, I have found nothing to equal Adlerika."

J. L. Puckett: "After using Adlerika, I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated."

It will astonish you the great amounts of poisonous matter Adlerika brings out—matter you would never believe was in your system. In chronic constipation, gas bloating, sour stomach and sick headache, just ONE spoonful of Adlerika brings wonderful relief. At leading druggists. Sold in Marion by Henney & Cooper and other druggists.—Ad.

Modern Wall Finishes

FOY'S Velvatoe is prepared especially for inside walls. To give that softness of finish in a wide range of color and stippled effects that cannot be had with other inside finishes. Velvatoe is not a water paint. But a full-bodied oil paint that is easy to apply and that dries with a satin-like finish.

Velvatoe is widely recommended by leading architects and interior decorators. Used in the finishing of some of the finest homes, clubs and buildings in the country, you may be sure your own walls will be in good taste if finished with Velvatoe.

Walls painted with Foy's Velvatoe afford a richer background for furniture and pictures than any other finish. They are easily cleaned with soap and water and will retain their full color for years without repainting.

There is a Foy Dealer near you who will gladly estimate your requirements and furnish color card.

The UNDERSTANDING HEART. - By PETER B. KYNE -

CHAPTER 1

The narrow, single-track dirt road that led through the canyon and over the low foot-hills on the western slope of the San Dumas National Forest a young man rode a Morgan-bred horse. Behind him a small but sturdy black mule, with a "mealy" nose, trotted merrily in a canvas-covered pack in an effort to keep pace with the running walk of the horse; from time to time this mule's displeasure at the hardship.

"What do you a bit of good, you tricky rascal," the man called back to the protesting mule, in the tone one might expect of an understanding and well-understood comrade. "I got to make headquarters by sundown. No loafing along the road for you, Jupiter, and no funny business to win my sympathy. Hey, there! Stop that!"

The man, having, as he concluded, given due warning, turned back to the protesting mule, in the tone one might expect of an understanding and well-understood comrade. "I got to make headquarters by sundown. No loafing along the road for you, Jupiter, and no funny business to win my sympathy. Hey, there! Stop that!"

ment. She was about 40 years old and had never been beautiful. Her face, red with the heat of the kitchen, was perspiring freely, and when she spoke Garland noted that her voice was pitched an octave too high. "She's tired, nervous and irritable," he thought. "I'll bet she sneaks the chief."

"You're welcome," the lady acknowledged the introduction and her lord's mandate. "I'm sure we haven't anything fit to give a guest, but such as it is, if you can stand it we can." A nervous little fitter concluded her ungracious speech.

"Jupiter is an intellectual giant compared with that woman," the youthful ranger told himself. "I've always heard Casey was hard-boiled. Now I know why." He was about to venture a cheerful commonplace when the lady returned to her kitchen, and Casey followed her in. When he came out his face was red with mortification.

"She's scolded him for bringing a guest in on her without warning. As if the poor devil could help it!" Aloud Garland said, "I'm afraid, Chief, I'm putting your wife to a lot of unnecessary trouble. Tell her, please, not to make a fuss as if I were company."

"The women who raise the most hell when they're fussed are just the ones 10 men and a boy couldn't keep from fussing. Sit down, Garland, and set out afoot to follow the trail of the recalcitrant Jupiter.

"She's a regular girl; she'll knock your eye out," said the chief ranger to Garland.

By sundown he had followed it 10 miles to another little glade, and quite in the center of this glade, held in the cleft of an alder branch thrust upright in the soft earth, he found another message. It was written in pencil on the white inner side of a square of willow bark, fresh-cut, and in order that the message might not be overlooked a red boudanna handkerchief had been tied to the alder branch. The message read:

"I'm sorry I borrowed your mule. He bucked me off here and headed North. When he strikes the trail again he'll probably follow it, or you may find him around here grazing. I borrowed your rifle but not for any mean purpose. Just figured that if I took it you wouldn't follow in a hurry to recapture the mule and tell me what you think of me. Herewith the rifle. Many thanks. If I had only had my own outfit on your mule I would have taught him to take a joke."

"I wish I could meet this cheerful fellow," was the thought that occurred to Jupiter's owner. "He's evidently on the dodge, but something tells me it isn't for anything very serious."

Unpacked in the little glade, put the stock-saddle on his horse and set out briskly on Jupiter's trail. A half-mile farther on he found the mule grazing and looking innocent, so he roped him and led him back to the pack, put hobbles on him and a bell, hobbled his horse, turned his animal loose to graze, and went into camp for the night.

Early next morning he was on the road. He found the trail again—he had traveled parallel with it the preceding day—and about noon reached the headquarters of the Forest Ranger force in charge of the San Dumas. A ranger came out of the office and greeted him as he dismounted.

"Hello, there, stranger. You're Garland, I take it?"

The new arrival saluted him. "Yes, sir, I am."

"I'm Chief Ranger Casey. We rather looked for you to arrive last night, Garland."

"Oh, I had a brawl with this fool mule! He delayed me, so I camped out rather than prowl through a timbered country I don't know, and in the dark."

"Well, light and have luncheon with Mrs. Casey and me. I'm going to locate you at the Tantrum Meadows station, about 10 miles from here. Better rest yourself and your animals for two hours and feed. You can get to your station by dark."

The chief ranger called an Indian, who took charge of Garland's horse and pack-mule, while he took charge of Garland and led him over to his comfortable low bungalow. Mrs. Casey came out of the kitchen, where she was preparing luncheon for her husband, and the chief ranger presented her to the recent arrival.

Monica rested her rifle against a low limb and waited.

to meet the girl who's turned him down and trampled on his conceit."

"They do not appear to be very persistent wooers," Garland suggested. "Oh, they're as persistent as the ordinary run of men, but the trouble is, Monica Dale isn't an ordinary girl. She has a faculty for selling a fellow an idea, and the best thing she sells is the idea that the fellow isn't wanted. She takes the tack out of them somehow."

"Hum-m-m!" Garland's contemptuous grunt was not lost on Casey.

"She'd take the tack out of a graven image," he declared. "Boy, hear me. She's man-proof. Forest rangers she figures as pointblank range; she has her sights set for bigger game."

"Well, that's to her credit," Garland laughed.

"You be careful, son. Wait till you hear her voice over the telephone. Stir you a bit!"

"The girl's safe from old man Garland's boy, Chief. I might fall in love with her, but until she fell in love with me I'd keep my fool mouth shut. I'm in no position to ask any girl to marry me, Chief. I have no desire to give hostages to fortune."

"You'll have the desire, all right. Not to have it would be unhuman and masculine. I admit Sunday belongs to you, but don't let me catch you spending a couple of afternoons a week on Bogus. And when you do go there on week-days, be sure you have a sound excuse. By the way, you'll find a duplicate of this map at your station. All the fire-fighting stations are marked very plainly and I suggest that you spend the first week with your forest guard, Martin, going over your territory and familiarizing yourself with it."

"Is Bogus Lookout in your territory?"

"Theoretically, yes. However, I never knew anybody who had any government business there, except to mend the forest service telephone line, or pick supplies up there for Monica Dale."

"What about that Monica Dale?" Mrs. Casey, bearing a tureen of soup, had emerged from the kitchen.

"I was warning Mr. Garland against her," Casey replied with a half-hearted attempt at humor.

"The hussey! She's never done with rolling her eyes at everything in pants."

"Oh, come, Bessie, my dear!" the chief ranger pleaded. "Everybody in pants knows Monica is a lady."

"A hillbilly's daughter—the child of an ignorant prospector—a lady? Mrs. Casey tittered merrily and Garland hoped she would drop the tureen of hot soup and scald her feet.

Knowing, however, that if anybody was to be scolded that person would be the chief ranger, he skillfully changed the topic of conversation by steering it into the channel he guessed would be most pleasing to the lady-to wit, her interests, her nobility in making such a delightful home for her husband in a country so barren of the social and cultural influences women of her class must crave.

He was so barbaled about it that almost almost—that Casey gave him a sly wink of approval and a barely perceptible nod which said, "She likes that sort of stuff. Feed her more of it."

When, two hours later, Ranger Garland resumed his journey toward Tantrum Meadows station, the Caseys parted with him with genuine regret. "What a nice young man!" Mrs. Chief Ranger Casey declared, and went to the gate and gazed after him.

"I wonder what the devil he's doing in the Forest Service," Casey mused. "He's bred and raised for something better in life, although I was too, for that matter." He sighed. "Perhaps, like me, the open spaces have got him. Perhaps he loves trees and peace and homely comfort and freedom from the competition of existence. Nice last. Wouldn't be surprised if he gives Monica Dale a dose of her own medicine. Wouldn't I cheer if he did? But he'll not!"

THE morning following his first night at the Tantrum Meadows station Ranger Garland was awakened at an early hour by the telephone bell, insistently ringing the call at that station. He found Chief Ranger Casey on the line.

"Got a special job for you, Garland," the chief ranger informed his subordinate. "Today you double as a policeman. There's an escaped convict in the San Dumas and I'm notifying all rangers and forest guards to be on the lookout for him. The sheriff and his posse are on his trail. They left it about a mile east of my headquarters and come over here for breakfast, but they have bloodhounds and can pick the trail up again after they have eaten."

"Have you a description of the man, Chief?"

"Yes. In fact, I know him well. His name is Robert Lee Mason. He's about 28 or 29 years of age, about six feet tall, a spare man, but powerful—shoulders as broad as a barn door. Weighs about 180 but doesn't look it. Thick fair hair, inclined to be wavy, dark blue eyes and olive complexion. You couldn't mistake him because of that detail. Most people with olive complexions have brown eyes, but this chap's are dark blue, a little deep-set and with a piercing expression. When he looks at you, you know a man is giving you the once-over. His nose is thin and high—patrician countenance—and his mouth sets shut like a cellar door. His teeth are fine, even, white and all there, and the first joint of his left index-finger is missing. Got it snarled up in his rope one day when he was laying it on a steer—most cowmen lose a finger before they emerge from the awkward squad."

"I'm glad to hear him so well spoken of, Chief," Garland replied pleasantly. "I take it he isn't a convict because he committed an atrocious crime."

"He didn't. Garland, he's a mighty decent chap. He only bumped off a man a good many folks in this country say wanted killing most god-awful bad."

Monica rested her rifle against a low limb and waited.

to meet the girl who's turned him down and trampled on his conceit."

"They do not appear to be very persistent wooers," Garland suggested. "Oh, they're as persistent as the ordinary run of men, but the trouble is, Monica Dale isn't an ordinary girl. She has a faculty for selling a fellow an idea, and the best thing she sells is the idea that the fellow isn't wanted. She takes the tack out of them somehow."

"Hum-m-m!" Garland's contemptuous grunt was not lost on Casey.

"She'd take the tack out of a graven image," he declared. "Boy, hear me. She's man-proof. Forest rangers she figures as pointblank range; she has her sights set for bigger game."

"Well, that's to her credit," Garland laughed.

"You be careful, son. Wait till you hear her voice over the telephone. Stir you a bit!"

"The girl's safe from old man Garland's boy, Chief. I might fall in love with her, but until she fell in love with me I'd keep my fool mouth shut. I'm in no position to ask any girl to marry me, Chief. I have no desire to give hostages to fortune."

"You'll have the desire, all right. Not to have it would be unhuman and masculine. I admit Sunday belongs to you, but don't let me catch you spending a couple of afternoons a week on Bogus. And when you do go there on week-days, be sure you have a sound excuse. By the way, you'll find a duplicate of this map at your station. All the fire-fighting stations are marked very plainly and I suggest that you spend the first week with your forest guard, Martin, going over your territory and familiarizing yourself with it."

"Is Bogus Lookout in your territory?"

"Theoretically, yes. However, I never knew anybody who had any government business there, except to mend the forest service telephone line, or pick supplies up there for Monica Dale."

"What about that Monica Dale?" Mrs. Casey, bearing a tureen of soup, had emerged from the kitchen.

"I was warning Mr. Garland against her," Casey replied with a half-hearted attempt at humor.

"The hussey! She's never done with rolling her eyes at everything in pants."

"Oh, come, Bessie, my dear!" the chief ranger pleaded. "Everybody in pants knows Monica is a lady."

"A hillbilly's daughter—the child of an ignorant prospector—a lady? Mrs. Casey tittered merrily and Garland hoped she would drop the tureen of hot soup and scald her feet.

Knowing, however, that if anybody was to be scolded that person would be the chief ranger, he skillfully changed the topic of conversation by steering it into the channel he guessed would be most pleasing to the lady-to wit, her interests, her nobility in making such a delightful home for her husband in a country so barren of the social and cultural influences women of her class must crave.

He was so barbaled about it that almost almost—that Casey gave him a sly wink of approval and a barely perceptible nod which said, "She likes

that sort of stuff. Feed her more of it."

When, two hours later, Ranger Garland resumed his journey toward Tantrum Meadows station, the Caseys parted with him with genuine regret. "What a nice young man!" Mrs. Chief Ranger Casey declared, and went to the gate and gazed after him.

"I wonder what the devil he's doing in the Forest Service," Casey mused. "He's bred and raised for something better in life, although I was too, for that matter." He sighed. "Perhaps, like me, the open spaces have got him. Perhaps he loves trees and peace and homely comfort and freedom from the competition of existence. Nice last. Wouldn't be surprised if he gives Monica Dale a dose of her own medicine. Wouldn't I cheer if he did? But he'll not!"

plastic. "He's a mountain man and he has one enemy in this country at the present time. Seems as if he couldn't complete his murder campaign before they sent him down to San Quentin. We'll have to round him up, if possible, to keep him out of trouble and save Jethroe, of the Heron's. He's a trouble-making fellow at Logwood Flats, some funeral expenses."

"The sheriff says he's back here to get Jethroe—not that anybody gives a hang, but then why permit him to make a mess. Anyway, you and I are in the Forest Service. We are sworn to cooperate with the civil authorities and empowered to arrest lawbreakers. It is our duty and we can't dodge it."

"Hard-boiled or ever faithful? I wonder which," Garland mused. "Very well, Chief. I wish Robert Lee Mason well, but if I should walk into him he'll not escape."

"Good man!"

"Have you telephoned that girl—what's her name?—the one in charge of the lookout station on Bogus—keep an eye out for him? With that blessing of hers she can see anything that moves within a radius of five miles."

"She couldn't see it this morning. There's fog in the San Dumas."

"I didn't know. Your ring got me out of bed. But she could be ready when the fog lifts."

"The sheriff doesn't want her to be ready. She knows this man Mason. He's an old friend of her father's—she's an old admirer. Anyway, she likes him better than any man she ever met, she's a mountain girl and would help him if she could."

"Bully for her!" said Ranger Garland.

"She reasons two ways—with her heart, like a woman, and with her head, like a man. Usually she uses her head on men, but her heart's been got out to Bob Mason. Sheriff Bentley to it as he mistress of Bogus Lookout. During the preceding afternoon a heavy North Pacific fog had blown in before the north-east summer trade wind.

Scudding eastward from the ocean, it had crept up and over the redwood-studded crests of the Coast Range mountains, where it hung until sucked down into the interior valleys by the vacuum created when the hot atmosphere of the plains climbed to cooler heights; following steadily eastward, it had rolled up the western slopes of the Siskiyou Range, and now, in the dark blur of sugar pine and white pine that was the San Dumas National Forest, it rested, too spent and thin to climb higher.

As far to the west as Monica could see, her world was a sea of fog, white as a gull's breast. Above it arched a cerulean sky; as the sun climbed to the zenith, and the white invader retired slowly before the sunlight of its rays, the fog gradually took on a bluish tinge. That was the dawn-thrust of light from the sky and the upthrust of light from the dark forest below. Presently hills and mountains peaks rose to the scene as an appearance. Truly magnificent—a peaceful sea dotted with lovely little islands all created with huge trees, among whose crowns thin wisps of fog still fluttered like a bride's veil. And over all was silence—the silence of the stout places—the silence that speaks like the thunder of many guns.

Suddenly a few hundred yards below her a dry twig snapped. The sound came from the timber on the far edge of the little mountain meadow in which she could see her horse grazing. "A deer," Monica thought—but instantly changed her mind as she observed her horse lift his head, stare intently in the direction of the snapping sound.

I, Earl E. Thomas, Auditor of Marion County, Ohio, do hereby certify the foregoing report to be correct.		March 12, 1928
		EARL E. THOMAS,
		Auditor of Marion County, Ohio
ORDINANCE NO. 2851
APPROVING AND ADOPTING THE SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS HERE- TOFORTH MADE FOR IMPROVEMENT OF EVANS ROAD FROM PROSPECT STREET TO CHENEY AVENUE BY CON- STRUCTING A SANITARY SEWER AND A STORM WATER SEWER THEREIN, AND LEVYING SUCH SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS UPON ABUTTING PROPERTY TO PAY THE COSTS AND EXPENSES OF SAID IMPROVEMENT, WHICH ARE CHARGEABLE BY LAW AGAINST ADJACENT LOTS.
Be it ordained by the Council of the City of Marion and State of Ohio:
Section 1. That the special assessments hereby levied against the lots and lands bordering and abutting upon Evans Road from Prospect Street to Cheney Avenue, for the construction of sanitary sewer and a storm water sewer therein, be and the same are hereby approved and adopted, no objections having been made and filed thereto.
Section 2. That said special assessments, above mentioned, be and the same are hereby levied against the lots and lands bordering and abutting upon Evans Road from Prospect Street to Cheney Avenue, for the purpose of paying the costs and expenses of constructing said sewer and storm water sewer, in the sum of $1.50 per linear foot.
Section 3. That said assessments shall be payable in cash within thirty days from the first publication of this ordinance in one installment, at the office of the City Treasurer of said City of Marion, Ohio, or at the option of the owner, in six annual installments with interest at five per cent per annum and penalty on deferred payments, at the office of the County Treasurer of Marion County, Ohio, after the same have been certified to the County Auditor of Marion County, Ohio, and in the manner prescribed by law.
Section 4. All money collected on the above assessments shall be applied to the payment of the notes and bonds issued to cover the property owners' portion of the costs and expenses of the construction of said improvement and for no other purpose.
Section 5. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after the earliest period allowed by law.
Passed March 12th, 1928.
E. M. MURPHY,
Treasurer of the Council.
Approved March 14th, 1928.

A man who has one wife too many is not necessarily a bigamist.

Do You Know What a Woman of 30 Should Weigh?

It all depends on her height of course. If she is five feet seven inches in height she should weigh according to the best authorities 142 pounds.

If she is 5 feet 5 inches her normal weight is 134 pounds.

If she is 5 feet 3 inches she should weigh 127 pounds.

It's dangerous to be always striving to grow thin—the Adirondack Mountains and health resorts everywhere are filled with health shattered women who will tell you that it doesn't pay to be too thin.

That is why so many thousands of underweight men and women are putting their faith in McCoy's Tablets.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 six-cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

The name McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets has been shortened—just ask for "McCoy's Tablets" at any drug store in America.—Adv.

Pat M'Dermott Mourns for "Ben" Nadel, Recalling How He Befriended "Lifer"

Columbus, March 22—Pat M'Dermott, once a tough little gunman, and now a life prisoner in the grim confines of Ohio Penitentiary, mourns today for Morris "Ben" Nadel, the man who befriended him when he was a fugitive, sought by police of the entire country as the "key man" in the assassination of Don R. Mellett, vice-fighting Canton newspaper publisher.

Early yesterday, Nadel's body, and that of a companion, both riddled with bullets, were found in an automobile on an isolated road near Willoughby, Ohio.

To police it was just another botched shooting. But to Pat M'Dermott, down at the penitentiary, the passing of Nadel means something more.

"Poor Benny," Pat mused. "How did this ever happen to him? He wasn't a hijacker. I don't believe I ever knew another bootlegger that was his enemy. And now he's gone—the only pal that stuck by me."

Reminiscence at Length

McDermott reminisced at length. He first met Nadel when they were both serving a "stretch" in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta. Ben was popular with the other prisoners. He supervised boxing bouts and other pastimes. He and Pat became friends.

Then several years later, after they had both regained their freedom, came the Mellett murder. McDermott, after hiding out for three months in Cleveland, was captured when he went to his home at Nanty Glig, Pa.

While he was in hiding it was Nadel who came to his assistance when his money ran low. Then, after McDermott's trial and conviction police learned of this and arrested Nadel on a charge of harboring a felon.

Trials Climax Recalled

The dramatic climax of Nadel's trial was recalled. McDermott, a convicted murderer, was led into the courtroom at Cleveland and placed on the witness stand. A lawyer told Nadel to stand up and answer the question, "Do you know this man?"

Pat looked steadily at his pal, shook his head slowly, and replied, "I never saw him before in my life."

It was well staged, a nice gesture, but futile. Nadel was found guilty and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. He was released on bond, pending an appeal, and this was the status of the case when he was murdered.

"I wish to God he had served his time," Pat remarked bitterly today. "Up there in the courtroom, over a year ago now, was the last time I ever saw him."

"Poor devil. And he was a tender-hearted as anybody I ever knew. Anybody that needed money or help could get it from Benny Nadel. Always doing something for his mother and father. Why he changed his name from Morris to Ben so that whenever he was arrested for selling booze his folks wouldn't know about it from reading the papers. His old mother must never know he was a bootlegger, he said."

Recalls Expenditures

"He must have spent all of $500 on me while I was in Cleveland. He was always ready to lend money to his friends. Once he told me that he would have close to quarter-million if he could collect all that was coming to him."

McDermott denied that Nadel helped him because he was in allegiance with him.

Green Camp Farmer Very Happy

Does Hard Work Every Day—Sykodoner Is the Answer—As Usual

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I hardly know how to express my new found joy and happiness. I have lived on the same farm, near Green Camp, Ohio, for 46 years—within two miles of where I was born, 68 years ago. Until about a week ago, I looked and felt more like eighty. Now I look and feel, at least, many years younger—and all because of what the wonderful Sykodoner did for me, in so short a time. It is simply marvelous. Why,

I had suffered, more or less, for thirty years, and took enough medicine to start a young drug store; only to become worse as I grew older. I could no longer do my farm work—not even walk ten rods to the barn. My dear old wife had to do the chores during the severe cold weather, until kind neighbors attended to that—thank the good Lord. I suffered something terribly—no one else can even realize what I endured. I suffered with pain, almost all over my entire body; and especially in the left side, kidneys, arms, neck; and almost choked to death. The doctor "shot" narcotics into my veins, every day or night, for almost a week. He finally told me that he could do nothing more for me. Now what was I to do? That was the all important question. I was in despair. My stomach was so acid I took almost five pounds of baking soda. For weeks I could barely sleep. I grew worse from day to day. All hope was gone, and I resigned myself to the hands of God. Like a message from heaven, my attention was finally called to the famous Sykodoner—the wonderful new treatment which is creating so much excitement in Marion, now. I lost no time in getting to the Sykodoner Man. Well, that same night I slept sound as a log, and ever since. I awoke with all pain and sufferings gone; and husked corn all that day. Two days later I helped my neighbor butcher hogs, and was not even tired that night. Now can you imagine anything so wonderfully delightful to a sick and discouraged sufferer? I think not! My joy has no bounds. I am making this statement voluntarily—was not solicited; for I feel it my moral duty toward my God and my fellowmen, that this grand and glorious Sykodoner work be made known to all. Why, I feel like shouting it from the very house-tops. Any one wishing to know more about what this marvelous discovery has done for me, will please not hesitate to ask me."

Central Christians, Business College Quintets Will Play

Game To Feature Schedule Tonight

Church Team Has Most Impressive Record; Harding Sophomore and First Reformed Teams Meet in Opening Contest at 7 O'Clock

KARL R. McLEROY
Sports Editor

Two outstanding teams in Marion basketball leagues will feature tonight's games of the county amateur basketball tournament at the Y. M. C. A. in the Class A division.

These two teams are the Central Christians, champions of the Marion County Sunday School Basketball League, and Marion Business College of the Industrial Loop. These aggregations have been rated as the best in Marion.

The league record of the Business College players is not quite so impressive as they finished second to the good-Commericals. However, earlier in the season the Collegians proved to be the sensation of the league by piling up a big lead in games won. It was through untimely reverses that they lost the title.

Central Christians made a wonderful name for themselves in winning the Sunday School championship. The team finished in a three way tie for first place and won in the playoff. In the third hard game of the week, the Christians defeated Epworth for the season's title.

Jack Quinn Tells Young Twirlers What to Do and Know When Making Big Time Grade

In every big league training camp in southern climes there are young, husky and ambitious baseball pitchers anxious to "make the grade."

They realize fully that every time they go out there on the mound to pitch to their fellow players—only in practice, it is true—that an eager manager is absorbing every move.

"What's the secret of success in pitching?" is a question asked thousands of times by rookies trying to join the "Big-Top" team.

No one is better qualified to answer than the veteran pitcher Jack Quinn of the Philadelphia "Athletics." And here is his reply:

"Put it where they can't murder it."

Quinn knows where he speaks. He is entering his twenty-fifth year on the professional diamond. Up and down from the majors to the minors he has slid and climbed. No big league pitcher has had such a varied career.

He opened in 1909 in the Pennsylvania State League. He bounced around with minor league teams in the South until 1909, when he moved to the American League.

Three years later found him back in an International League uniform, but the next year the "Braves" of the National League claimed him. Another drop carried him down to Federal and "Pacific Coast" aggregations, but 1918 found him with the "White Sox," later to be taken by the Yankees where he remained three years more.

Now at the beginning of 1923 Jack Quinn, many times considered a total "flop" in baseball, is again wearing an American League uniform. Those who have seen him work out this spring say that his good right arm is equal to a few more seasons.

That is something of a record—to be entering the quarter century of big league pitching. No wonder his advice to youngsters should be taken seriously.

NEW FISH LAWS

When the fishermen of the Buckeye state face forth this year, some important changes in legislation will govern their activities. Fishermen should make it a point to read the laws and become familiar with them, as many arrests are made each year of anglers not informed. Unknown violators are subject to the same fine as willing violators.

Minnows come in for their share of new legislation. In the first place a dealer must take out a license and is not permitted to have over 4,000 minnows in his possession at one time. He is not permitted to sell more than 100 to any individual in a day's time.

It is probable that confusion will exist over the clause in the law which states that a person may not have over 100 minnows in his possession at one time.

If two men were fishing the banks of a river and one carried a bucket with over a hundred minnows, they would be in his possession and he would be liable to arrest, despite the fact that he was carrying the load of the other chap. It is highly probable that wardens of the state would not enforce the law to the letter in this particular case, as they are following a policy of making arrests when violations are apparent and not when a technically is involved. It has been followed through the rabbit season in the case of possession clause.

This will work hardships on some anglers who take trips of several days to rivers or lakes, some distance away. Often they carry, and carefully preserve, more than the allotted number of minnows.

It would seem that taking out a dealer's license would give coverage in this case, as possession is changed from 100 to 4,000. Dealer's license fee is $5.00.

A law designed to protect spawning areas of fish in streams is effective this year in sealing minnows. This law states that you may not seine from May 1 to June 14, in any stream over 12 feet width at the point of seining, or at any point 50 yards above or below the seining operations.

The law applying to a net eight feet wide and four feet deep is still in effect in the inland district of Ohio.

Suckers, carp and other coarse fish are not protected by any laws in the state of Ohio, save in the manner of taking. Size limit and number are not mentioned. Neither are catfish or perch.

Bass are protected in the state from April 30 to June 15, both days inclusive. The limit per day is 12 (not 10) and they must be eleven inches in length. Crappie (Shad) must be six inches in length and not over 40 can be taken at any one time. Rock bass and bluegill must be five inches in length and the limit is set at 25 fish per day. There is no closed season on bluegill, crappie or rock bass.

A license fee of a dollar is charged anglers who use a reel in fishing. Canoe pole artists, with no control over the line save by the pole, are exempt.

Three hooks are permitted on one line and poles must be under immediate control. The laws covering this are not clear and have caused many arguments and have been interpreted in several ways. The best policy is to fish according to dictates of common sense and conscience.

Tularemia

The best description of rabbit tularemia came from the American Game Association conference at New York.

Tularemia was being discussed and Major Robertson, of Maryland, asked Paul Redding, chief of the U. S.

Biological Survey, what tularemia is and how the layman can determine its presence. Redding answered that he was not a medical or scientific and suggested that Dr. Bell of the survey answer the question.

Doctor Bell said: "It is rather easy to determine that fact. The afflicted rabbit is usually stupid. He is the fellow who sits around under cover at your feet and isn't likely to make a quick getaway. Of course, they may be perfectly healthy when they do that, but look out for the one who sits too close. There is a chance he is a sick rabbit and has tularemia. Likewise the ones that are caught by dogs and cats are apt to be sick ones. But the one means by which you can tell for sure is to open the rabbit up and if the liver and spleen are all spotted with little white specks, that is an indication that he does have tularemia. In doing that, watch your fingers."

Bowling League Banquet is Held

Teams Finishing Season in First Division Given Feed by Six Losers in National League at Y. M. C. A. Dining Room

MANY RACERS ARE BEING TRAINED ON OHIO TRACK

Cleveland, March 22—More than 115 trotters and pacers are being trained at the North Randall race track near here, getting into shape for the 1928 races, on the Grand Circuit.

Nat Ray, champion reinsman of two years ago has the largest number of horses on the Randall track in training. He has twenty sulky racers being put through their "paces" daily and expects to win the majority of races he will enter this year.

There are three candidates in training here for the $85,000 Hamiltonian three-year-old trotting stake, richest light harness racing fixture in the world, which will be raced at Syracuse, N. Y., August 27. Ray has Peter Beamore, owned by H. B. Rea, of Pittsburgh. Fine Girl is being trained by Vic Fleming here. Fine Girl belongs to Frank Callahan, Tiffin, and A. K. Vail is getting Peter Zane, owned by W. F. Currie, of Toronto, Canada, in trim.

It was a grand old night for the first division teams of the Marion Industrial Bowling teams last night when they were banqueted by the losers of the Y. M. C. A. dining room.

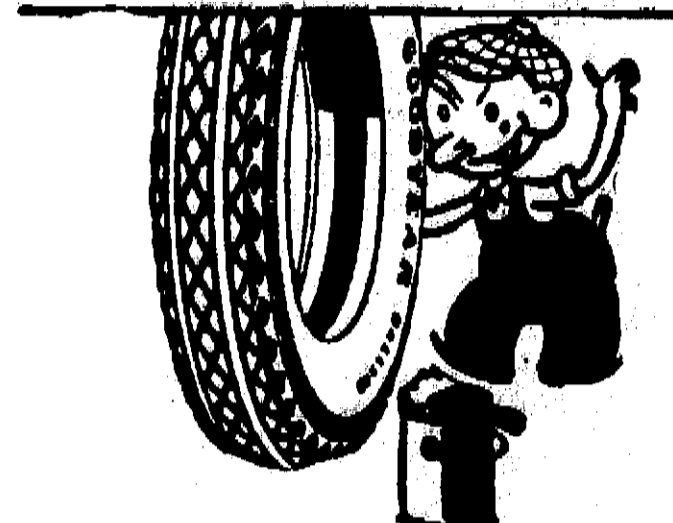

As a result of winning the first place, teams representing Huber, Logan Gas, Anthony Laundry, L. playmen, Marion Star and C. D. & M. received a free feed.

The losers who furnished the feed were Erie, Hocking Valley, Postoffice, Y-Indus, American Express and Huberman Chevrolet.

Following the banquet a series of talks were given. Members of the league winning Huber aggregation made short remarks concerning the past season.

Bowling in the Industrial League during the year was one of the biggest successes in many seasons. The race was very close with the winning team being in doubt until the final game were rolled. The season ended last week.

THE BEST TIRE REPAIRING WITH ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT

FACING TIGER TEAM

ance of Club Needs Noth-
g. According to Manager
George Moriarty

Editor's Note: This is the affairs of a series of articles by International News Service, along with developments in connection with various major league clubs in spring training. The six-month and last of the series will be published in the last of the series.

March 22—With the training season almost completed, Moriarty has just about settled the personnel of his Detroit club, and is contemplating the possibility of a trade from discussing the Tigers had about everything as they last year that cautioned them to be careful. Yet they finished the season with a record of 100 wins and gave indications of being a team that seemed certain to win the pennant before long.

One would not say today that it was a foregone conclusion but he left no doubt that he considers he has a surprisingly good chance of slightly uncertain future of the club, he desired nothing and wanted nothing.

Neun On First
The base will be John Nena.
He was good enough last year to drive home runs and eventually on the bases. Neun is another player. At third will be Harry Merrill, who has suddenly decided to stay in his St. Louis position. Moriarty has taken the position from Warner, last year's star, and is going so well that it is just a matter of time to replace him.

Neun refers to this infield as the best he has had in years. If he says it will, it will be a good infield. Moriarty is not a pitcher, but he is a man.

As the Tiger "pilot" contends, the infield should not be so indifferent. Moriarty has had Whitehill, L.J. Stoner, Lloyd, Gibson, Carroll, Billings, and Van Gilder figured as regular.

Ackley Being Considered As Good Olympic Timber

MARION County will have Mackley, another strong candidate for the American Olympic team in Stanford Ackley, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Ackley of south of here and student at Ohio State University.

The name of the Marion County youth was advanced through his victories in the Big Ten in wrestling meets during the past year. Weighing 175 pounds, Ackley was the outstanding star of the State team winning every match.
Ackley is 21 years of age and this is his first year on the squad.
Last winter he won the Freshman grappling title without much trouble.

During the first half of the Ohio State schedule, Ackley had gone into matches as the underdog. Then a series of victories placed him in a position to be regarded as somewhat a threat. He took every opponent over the coals in a most convincing style, topping off a brilliant season by a well earned victory over Michigan's representative.

He will compete in the Western Conference Wrestling championships at Bloomington, Ind., next week. Later he will try for a berth on the American Olympic team.

He is a graduate of Prospect High School.

YANKS WIN FIRST

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 22—The New York Yankees will play their final game with the Boston Braves today. With Hoyt and Pipgras pitching, they won their first exhibition game of the season yesterday in trimming the Braves 8 to 2.

HERMAN AGAIN STARS

Clearwater, Fla., March 22—Babe Herman, formerly a first baseman, has battered his way into the Brooklyn outfield. His home run and double featured the Robbin's 8 to 3 victory over the Washington Senators at Tampa yesterday.

INDIAN COURT TEAM RALLY TO WIN OVER KENTON CAGE SQUAD

Win Contest

Kenton, March 22—Rallying in the last half the World Famous Indians, fresh from their victorious conquests in the East and West where they played some of the leading clubs of the country, defeated the Kenton Reds at the armory Wednesday night by a score of 28 to 21.

The game was a benefit for the Reds.
Tuesday the Indians won over Marion Isaly Dairies, 39 to 37.

With the exception of the last two quarters, play was nip and tuck with the Reds holding a slight edge at the half the score being 11 to 10 in their favor.

Starting off the second half the Indians merged into the lead by a series of brilliant offensive plays, in which Smith, West and Wapp figured promi-nently. The third frame ended with the Redskins holding down a 21 to 13 lead.

In the last quarter play was more evenly divided, the locals scoring eight points to the Indians' seven. The

HOPPE INCREASES LEAD

On the jump in all weathers 3/4 of the Highway Police questioned said, "Saves us sore muscles"

THE MEN whose job it is to keep the highways safe are famous for their courage, their daring, their defiance of hardship, strains, danger.

In every state they represent the pick of its hardest specimens. Their bodies must be strong, quick, supple to respond to the sudden emergencies they are constantly called upon to face. And yet they have to do their work under conditions that would lay most men up with colds, rheumatism, stiff, strained muscles.

How do they keep themselves free of these ailments?

We put this up to the men themselves. Three-quarters of the number questioned said, "We use Sloan's."

Everywhere—the chief reliance of hard workers

And everywhere you get the same answer from people whose work keeps them out in bad weather or brings a heavy strain on their muscles. They swear by Sloan's Liniment.

Used after exposure to wet or cold, it prevents chilling, colds, stiffening of the muscles. And it brings the quickest, surest relief for every kind of muscular pain, rheumatism, sprains and bruises.

Read this statement from a policeman who has served on the Philadelphia police force for twenty-seven years: "As I have used a considerable quantity of Sloan's Liniment in the last few months and received almost instant relief, I think it my duty for the sake of humanity to recommend it to others. It gives me great pleasure to recommend Sloan's for all pains in the back and legs, as I do a lot of walking and am exposed to all kinds of weather." William R. Christy, Sr., 1933 Master Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

And this from a brakeman on the Chicago and Northwestern who was suffering agony from a sprain and a wrenched ligament:

"I fell off the top of a box car on my left arm, spraining it and tearing the ligaments loose. I suffered considerable pain for about forty-eight hours. I got a bottle of Sloan's Liniment. It relieved the pain right away.
It is now fifty-three hours since I was hurt.

I have no pain at all to speak of. The swelling has nearly all gone down. I think it is the best liniment I have ever used. I suggest that anybody having a sprain get a bottle and apply it according to directions." Harry M. Hall, Belle Plaine, Iowa.

Everyone should have Sloan's Liniment always on hand—for immediate use in case of emergency. Apply liberally—but without rubbing. Right away you feel a glowing warmth—a quick, powerful stimulation to the circulation which breaks up congestion and sweeps away germs and poisons.
The pain stops because the cause of the pain is gone. Use it for:

- Rheumatism
- Lame Muscles
- Sciatica
- Stiff Neck
- Lumbago
- Colds and
- Neuralgia
- congestions
- Sprains and bruises

One of the Highway Police who said, "We swear by Sloan's to ward off the results of exposure and strain." It's the best ever to knock colds, prevent rheumatism, limber up lame muscles, and relieve the pain of sprains and bruises.

Here's what the company doctor of one of the big railroads says of Sloan's: "People whose work exposes them to strain or to damp and cold usually suffer from a good deal of muscular soreness. We find that Sloan's gives them quick, positive relief."

Ben Hogan Deserts Oil Fields and Fortune for Fighting

By FRANK G. MENKE
EVER hear the story of a pug who swapped prospective profits of about $100,000,000 just so he could climb back into the ring for a fight that led him only into the gutters?

Hogan was born in Germany of Irish parents in 1844, came to this country in 1852 and in 1914 he mingled in his first professional battle. Because of potential objection to the art of fist throwing, Hogan changed his name to Hogan and, for many years his folk-did not know that Ben Hogan actually was their son.

For the next eight years Hogan fought whenever the chance offered. But chances were few. He had no more than a dozen fights. All of them were for side bets. Sometimes Hogan would lose; often he won. No one paid much attention to him until 1918 when he met Tom Allen in an exhibition match and actually outpointed the man who then was claiming the heavyweight championship of the world.

Goes To Oil Fields
Hogan then challenged Allen to a finish fight. But Allen paid no heed. After which Hogan drifted into Pennsylvania at a time when the oil boom was just starting.

He put his money into oil lands and within six months his property was worth $100,000—in the market of that day. Only a small corner of the vast property on which Hogan held leases had been touched by the tools of drillers. The holdings of Hogan were destined to produce $100,000,000 worth of oil.
But then came a day when Allen finally decided that he would fight Hogan. He sent acceptance to Hogan of the earlier challenge. Hogan wavered for a while between continuing in oil—going back to the ring. And in the end, he determined to fight again.

While the referee was debating the claim, Allen's gang broke into the ring and made a dash for Hogan. The latter jumped through the ropes and made his escape. The referee then announced that his ruling was a "draw" and that the stakes was to be returned to the fighters.
It was Hogan's last ring appearance. He went to New York and indulged in riotous living for several years. Eventually his fortune was squandered. He became an outcast so far as his earlier friends were concerned; he became a "bum" of the lowest type—this man who traded millions and tens of millions for the privilege of fighting one more battle than gained him nothing.

Drifting—down—and ever—Hogan paused on the street one day to listen to open-air religiousists. He listened—and became a convert on the spot. He joined the little band, eventually became one of its most ardent orators and made thousands of converts before the call from Beyond and he answered the last bell.

BELL GOES TO BRAVES

ROGERS HORNSBY IS OUTSTANDING FACTOR IN LATEST TRANSFER

Andy High Sent to St. Louis Team; New Player Friend of Rajah

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
New York, March 22—Without straining an ocular tendon, one can see the face, spatulate hand of Rogers Hornsby figuring ultra-prominently in the deal, announced yesterday, whereby Lester Bell and Andy High changed into the uniforms of the Boston Braves and the St. Louis Cardinals respectively. I am aware that a mere second baseman and field captain has no particular business figuring even obscurely in an inter-club deal. Also that Hornsby had declared eternal allegiance to Jack Slatery and that sweet spirits of applause are anointing the entire premises.

However, this is no ordinary second baseman and field captain. We are talking about Rogers Hornsby, who managed the Cards into a world's championship only 18 months ago and now outdraws his manager almost 3 to 1 in salary. Hornsby, as aggressive and dominating as ever, is exerting a definite influence in the affairs of his new club and, if you don't think so, then there is nothing for it but for you to admit that canned spinach makes a swell corage.

Mutual Admires
The Bell deal may not substantiate this contention, in fact, whatever that is, but it certainly offers no rebuttal evidence, either. The fact of the matter is that Hornsby and Bell were mutual admirers in St. Louis and the inference is that the trade wouldn't have been made if Hornsby's interests had been elsewhere.

Hornsby wanted Bell. He got him. The New York Giants only dropped overtures, looking toward the same result, when they discovered that Hornsby himself was not to remain in New York for another season.

It was common gossip around the 1926 world series that one of the greatest of Hornsby's triumphs at that time, exceeded only by the fact that he had brought the Cards down to the wire for the first time in nearly 40 years, was the development of Bell and Flinn. When the fact bell pitcher.

His effect on Bell was almost instan-

ELDER HIGH OF CINCINNATI WINS IN CATHOLIC MEET

Chicago, March 22—De La Salle High of Joliet, Ill., defending champion, Elder High of Cincinnati and Cathedral High of Indianapolis, were qualified today for second round play in the fifth annual National Catholic Interscholastic Basketball Tournament in process at Loyola University.

Joliet qualified last night in the tournament's opening game by swamping Calvert Hall of Baltimore, 27 to 15. Cincinnati triumphed over St. Benedict of Atchison, Kan., by the overwhelming score of 24 to 6. Indianapolis eliminated Cathedral High of St. Cloud, Minn., by the narrow margin of 15 to 14.

These three victorious quintets will rest today while other following first round games are played.

Training Camp Briefs

PITCHING POOR
Bradenton, Fla., March 22—The New York Giants are battling impressively, but their pitchers are showing poor. The New Yorkers needed 20 hits to nose out the Red Sox yesterday, 11 to 10.

INDIANS WIN
New Orleans, March 22—Manager Peckinpaugh of the Cleveland Indians today was praising his players who defeated the Columbus A. A.'s at Gulfport, Miss., Wednesday 7-5. Underhill and Brown, recruit twirlers for the Tribe, are making a good impression, it is said.

lanous. From a very common-place third baseman he became a ranking star in 1926 not only folding sensationally but hitting close to .350. When it was all over Hornsby was untucked and sent to New York. Upon which, Bell blew himself to a most indifferent season hitting down around .200.

When won 20 ball games for Hornsby during the pennant year but was a flop in 1927. Maybe Hornsby's departure had nothing to do with it. All I know is that Hornsby liked him and wasn't able to win last year.

If our Rogers can persuade Bell to play up to his 1926 speed, the Braves are made as a ball club. If he can't, there is no particular harm done.

BOXING COMMISSION MAY END RELATIONS WITH GENE TUNNEY

Champion Refuses To Name Next Opponent from Three Challengers

New York, March 22—Diplomatic relations between Gene Tunney and the New York State Athletic Commission were badly strained today, and may be broken off altogether tomorrow.

The heavyweight champion, replying to a communication from the commission, ignored a suggestion to pick his next opponent from Jack Sharkey, Tom Heeney and Johnny Risko, who have challenged him in New York and informed the commissioners that he had turned that particular business over to Tex Rickard for adjustment.

There will be a discussion of Tunney's case at the commission meeting tomorrow and it may develop into a slap on the wrist for Gene.

In the meanwhile Tunney's six months of grace expires today and no opponent or date has been announced for his next match. It has been just six months since the Dempsey-Tunney affair in Chicago.

MAKE PREPARATIONS TO HANG M'DONALD

Wife Awaits Execution Hoping He Will Exonerate Her of Murder Charge

Valleyfield, Que., March 22—Preparations for the execution of George McDonald, former Broadway bootlegger, and gunman, are completed. At the sun creeps over the horizon tomorrow morning he will march from his death cell to the foot of the gallows here, drag 652 last steps up the 19 stairs of the ladder and be propelled into eternity by Hangman Ellis in fulfillment of the sentence of death imposed for the murder of Alfred Bouchard.

Thirty-five miles away, in Montreal, his wife, Louis Palmer McDonald, who awaits news of his death, hoping that she will be exonerated. McDonald will confess and completely exonerate her from any part in the murder.

Final efforts to secure a reprieve for McDonald have failed. Police reinforcements reached here this morning for duty in the vicinity of the prison. All visitors to the city are under close police surveillance. Hearing rumors that friends of McDonald might attempt a last-minute jail delivery, Chief Lorrain and his officers immediately quadrupled the guards at the county jail where McDonald is scheduled to be hanged.

Brilliant searchlights will play over town tonight.

COST ACCOUNTANTS TO MEET MONDAY

Marion Group Planning To Attend Session To Be Held in Columbus

Many Marion cost accountants are planning to attend the chapter meeting of the National Association of Cost Accountants at the Chattanooga Hotel, Columbus, next Monday night.

Charles W. Hettell, Pittsburgh, was the principal speaker. He is president of the Pittsburgh chapter and author of "Cost Presentation for Executives," a book which was first place in the National Prize Essay contest. He installed accounts and budget record for Pennsylvania. At the present time he is engaged as a research economist for the Pennsylvania Industrial Survey.

Mr. Hettell's subject will be "Definite Fixing of Responsibilities as to the operation of cost system." H. H. Watkins, general cost accountant of the Timken Roller Bearing Co. at Canton, will also be a speaker. His subject being "Standard Cost." Mr. Watkins has previously been connected with the Pullman Co. as general cost accountant and at present he is a member of the working committee for uniform accounts for the anti-fractional leasing industry. Mr. Watkins has been using standard costs for nearly 15 years and comes with plenty of practical experience as a background for his talk on this subject.

CONFERS GRANGE WORK

ONE BOTTLE OF KONJOLA ENDED HIS RHEUMATISM

"I Could Never Get It All Out of My System," He States

MR. E. S. BROOMHALL
"I tried every known liniment and all sorts of hot compresses for my rheumatism, but I could never get it all out of my system, until I started with Konjola," said Mr. E. S. Broomhall, 2228 Solo Road, North Linden, Columbus, Ohio.

"About 15 years ago I contracted rheumatism in my hands, arms and legs, and I was almost in constant misery with these aches and pains ever since. During these attacks I would be crippled with swollen feet and hands and stiffened arms and legs that I had to get off from work as long as six months at a time.

"I got Konjola and to my surprise the pains started to leave me before the first bottle was half gone. By the time I finished this bottle there wasn't the slightest pains anywhere and I could raise my arms and legs as freely as ever. I strongly urge every sufferer to give this new medicine a trial."

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices extracted from natural plants which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that had been going on for years. At the same time many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product until now Konjola is the most highly endorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Konjola is strongly recommended here in Marion at Stump & Sams Pharmacy, and is also being sold by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this section.—Adv.
